Bears come in all shapes and sizes

According to the World Book Encyclopedia, a bear is “a large, powerful animal with thick, shaggy fur.” The Alaskan bear, growing to about nine feet and weighing over 1,500 pounds, is the largest meat-eating animal on land while the smallest bear, the sun or Malayan bear, is usually three or four feet long and weighs only sixty to one hundred pounds.

The source lists seven species of bears in the world: (1) big brown bears, (2) American black bears, (3) Asiatic black bears, (4) polar bears, (5) sun bears, (6) sloth bears, and (7) spectacled bears. However, an eighth species of bears exists . . . the Southwest Bear.

While the brown bear or grizzly in North America may be the most dangerous animal, American black bears the most common, polar bears the best swimmers, sun bears the smallest, and sloth bears the slowest, Southwest Bears possess characteristics that separate them from all others. Southwest Bears are competitive and fearless when facing the competition, quick to recognize and rectify areas of weakness, eager to face a challenge, determined to succeed, willing to help others, seek areas for involvement, practice for perfection, and study to prepare themselves for continued education in a formal setting or for the workforce. Slow, small, and common are foreign terms to the fierce Southwest Bear.

And while bears wander far from home, Southwest Bears return home each October to celebrate with former classmates and to make new friends. And while bears are similar in form, Southwest Bears come in many shapes and sizes, gifted with many talents and beliefs.

As they stroll down one of the many lanes on campus, Lee Wall, Charlene Wilkerson, and Michelle Schobey discuss the day's events.

Students like Sharry Bergeron and Teresa James make numerous trips across the bridge during their days at Southwest.

What better time than after class and after football season to talk to friends. Jeremy Harris, Matt Garrett, Corey Groover, Robin Gamble, and Nic Patrick certainly enjoyed their time together.

Southwest shapes your future

Diversity marks any college campus, so Southwest was no exception, yet the one unifying factor was the family atmosphere that permeated through the student body. Through group assignments, sporting events, and organizational meetings, students met and learned others. Each event helped to shape personalities.

Sporting and academic competitions offered by Southwest shaped Bears, too. After weeks of practice for Scholars Bowl or sporting activities, such as baseball, softball, football, tennis, and basketball, competitors were physically and mentally prepared to win.

Students desiring to perform had that opportunity through Stage Band performances and the Marching Band. Performing in front of hundreds shaped personal confidences.

With a record fall enrollment exceeding 2,000, Southwest shaped the lives of many Bears. While some saw the rewards of attending a small community college such as Southwest, others will learn its value when they walk the halls of a large four-year institution. In time, these bears, the Southwest Bears, will remember how their time at Southwest positively shaped their lives for their future endeavors.

hat activities do students do when they are not in class? Well, the life of a student is never dull. Activities abounded to interest all students.

The first order of business, however, was to meet the new freshmen and to renew friendships with returning sophomores. For some that meant meeting their roommate for the very first time and establishing rules and boundaries for sharing space for an entire semester. If roommates didn't know each other before arriving at the dorms, little time passed before they knew each other very well. Guys hurriedly unpacked and gathered outside their dorms to catch the first glimpse of campus life - girl watching, that is, while girls fashioned their new home with the comforts and conveniences of the one they left behind. Using books, pencils, pens, paper, TV's, refrigerators, hair dryers, microwaves, computers, cell phones, and radios, students shaped their rooms to reflect their individuality. By the time classes began, students were ready to face the challenges that would forever shape their future.

Bears square off at noon

Beaming sun makes faces beam at Bear Necessities Day

Each spring, Bears take to the fields of John I. Hurst Stadium for a day packed with fun and laughter. This spring was no different even though cold weather and a wet football field forced organizers to postpone the activities for a few days. Although the event occurred on April 22, 2003, after a change of plans, no one could dampen the excitement of the exuberant participants as they formed teams and chose captains.

The one-mile run signaled the beginning of the day's activities, with the competitive finish in the men's race marking the beginning of a competitive day in which victors gained bragging rights. Coming from behind, Bryce Crawford snatched the title from Steve Tallo in the last seconds as they rounded the curve on the final lap of the race while Melissa Overton claimed the women's title.

Few had the endurance to participate in the long run of four laps around the field, but many attempted to spit their way into victory circle in the tobacco-spitting contest. Distance was the key here . . . that plus the ability to spit without getting sick or swallowing the juices. Royce Fonte and Dawanna Addison proved their "spitability."

Rounding out a morning of individual competitions, contestants traveled to the south end of the field for the softball throw with Dewanna

Addison and Marc Howard coming away champions.

As important as the individual competitions were, team events got the crowd choosing their favorite men and women teams. Muscles flexed, shoes dug into the grass, and faces grimaced as the whistle blew for teams to square off against each other in tug-of-war. As the circle of contestants narrowed, the intensity widened. High-fives followed the cheers that erupted as champions drug their opponents across the line. Joyous celebration superceded aching, blistered hands and skinned knees, so the announcement for lunch greeted welcoming ears that desired a break in action before the afternoon events.

During the egg toss, Mario Russ cups his hand to catch the egg, which turns out to be a triumphant move.

With Coach Doug Lucas watching, Seth Guidry tries his hand at the newest competition during Bear Necessities Day, the Frisbee toss.

As team captain Jannice Boyd cheers from the side, Danielle Williams holds the end of the rope, Judy Alford clutches the middle, and LaShea Glen forms the front anchor, which creates an unbeatable cosmetology team.

Contestants round out the morning with lunch

Those familiar with Bear Necessities Day recognized Dean Young's old, red truck as the next object to master. With replenished tummies from a picnic style lunch of hamburgers, hot dogs, chips, dessert, cold beverages, and replenished spirits from time spent with friends and teammates, one by one teams latched onto the truck's tailgate and sides as they endeavored to push the truck the distance in winning time. Waiting teams watched and plotted their strategies.

Pushing in unison changed to walking in unison as team members paired up for the three-legged race. From tying the string to their ankles to tying the string to their thighs, partners practiced and made adjustments before the whistle blew, yet without synchronized steps, they quickly discovered that it really didn't matter where they had tied the strings.

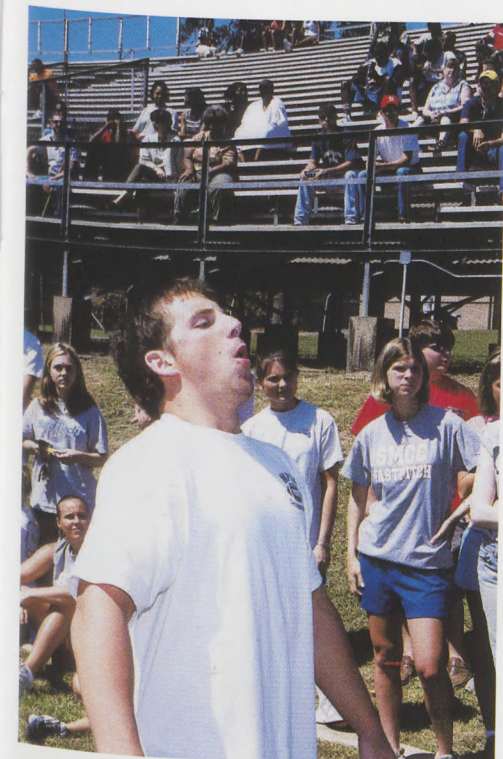

Of all the events, perhaps the one that required the most concentration was the egg toss. No one wanted egg on his/her face, so each took "egg"tra care in watching for the tossed egg. With two events remaining, the relay race and the Frisbee toss, many wondered whether or not they could endure. As the crowds slowly drifted away to escape the sun's fierce rays and the afternoon heat, the teams battled to the bitter end. With a beaming sun overhead, beaming Bear faces on the field with blistered bodies, aching muscles, and tired spirits waited for the results. Yet, all were winners because through these games, these Bears had experienced the essentials of teamwork, respect, acceptance, defeat, victory, and patience that would contribute to shaping their future.

Stage comes alive at Spring Stage Band Shows

W hy book a flight to Las Vegas when you could attend the Spring Stage Band Shows and see all of the drama of dancers, vocalists, and stage band members, AND as usual, the crowds were not disappointed.

As the curtain parted, Stevie Lott and Karinlee Brister strolled down the steps singing, "It Had to Be You," as the dancers made their way through the audience to the stage to join the musicians.

The dancers shed their feathers for the remaining numbers of the evening that featured them in "Impact Zone," "Jungle Boogie," and "Zoot Suit Riot," while the voices of Stevie and Karinlee warmed up in their opening number for their other solos each performance.

Karinlee rendered her vocal talent in "The Game of Love," "Blessed," and "God Bless America." Those in attendance felt truly blessed after hearing her renditions of each selection. Stevie added his touch of dance to his solos of "Unforgettable" and "Zoot Suit Riot."

Brandi Knight joined the list of vocalists, singing "At Last," "Unforgettable," and "God Bless the USA." Remaining vocalists included Sarah Graves, Jen Goodwin, Steven Carroll, and Jade Brock, who doubled her duties of playing sax and singing "A Thousand Miles."

However, singing and dancing were only half of the show.

big shows? On April 24 through April 26, 2003, the Southwest auditorium came alive with music, dance, solos, and show girls adorned with feathers that could rival any major production, and the cost was reasonable . . . FREE!

Crowds from near and far eagerly anticipate the spring shows that feature the local talent of Southwest students as

Eight months and counting

Without the accompaniment of the stage band, the shows would have lacked that touch of live performances. The band not only accompanied vocalists, but it also provided solos of its own, including "Kansas City," "Cut to the Chase," "Woodchopper's Ball," and "Flip, Flop and Fly."

With "Jump in the Line" and "Mo

Java," the steel drum band gave the crowds a taste of music south of the border, and jazz lovers had their thirst quenched with "Whole Lotta Lovin'."

Whether crowds preferred jazz, soul, country, or rock-n-roll, all met on common ground at the end of each performance as the shows concluded with a patriotic salute to America and the lowering of the American flag.

By the end of four shows, Southwest's Stage Band had once again satisfied its supporters for now, but as the crowds left, you could hear them counting . . . only eight months to go before the Christmas shows. Now, that's plenty of time for performers and musicians to get into shape.

The patriotic salute is always the high point at each performance. Vocalists Karinlee Brister, Brandi Knight, Stevie Lott, Steven Carroll, Jen Goodwin, and Sarah Graves bring the crowd to tears and to their feet to honor this great country.

Sarah Graves, Steven Carroll, Karinlee Brister, Jen Goodwin, Mandi Ritchie, Raven Dunaway, Laurie Allen, Stevie Lott, and Brandi Knight blend their vocal and dance talents together.

The saxes, trumpets, and trombones bring a mellow sound to the show. On sax were Jade Brock, Kamie Dillon, Jenny McMillan, Carry Nunnery; trombones, Brian Rodgers, Kristen Prentiss, Chrystal Price, Clarence Smith; and trumpets, Daniel Rankin, Derek Burchfield, Robin Lea, and Rebecca McKenzie.

Rounding out the sound from the rhythm section are Jeff Brown, Ben Legg, Justin Addison, Jude Crawford, and Reginald McGhee.

Dr. Williams listens intently to the needs and requests of her advisee, Randi Dampier.

Returning to school often produces added stress for families of non-traditional students, yet Gloria Van Norman and Cheryl McKinley attempt to ease the stress of all students who visit their station during registration.

Record number travel road to bright future

Fall enrollment tops 2,000 mark

Another August, another beginning, another semester of students looking for the skills and training to succeed in a demanding world . . . wrong! Fall semester '03 was anything but just "another" semester as fall enrollment reached 2,052, a jump from 1,850 last fall.

"I attribute the growth in enrollment to the diversity of programs and, of course, layoffs in industry. I think all of the colleges and universities are seeing accelerated enrollment now. When I first came in 1953, enrollment was approximately 300 students. There were 18 faculty members teaching 70 classes, and there are now 96 faculty teaching 638 classes," commented President Holmes regarding this record enrollment.

The largest jump in enrollment was in the social sciences, such as psychology and sociology. In addition, more students are taking anatomy and physiology, and most of the programs in the vocational-technical program were up as well.

Southwest also saw about a twenty percent increase in students' signing up for online classes. In this Southwest's third year to offer online instruction, more than 300 students registered online through Southwest, but Southwest instructors taught over 450 students in a consortium with other two-year colleges.

In addition to achieving this milestone for course instruction, Career Center Director Jerry Malone expects the Center to repeat its record performance from last year of serving approximately 3,000 people in non-credit, short-term, and start-up training as well as other programs through the Career Center.

Whether students sought the ease and convenience of online instruction, completed mail-in registration, or opted to go the traditional "foot" route, dormitories bulged and classes expanded to accommodate for students who traveled the road to Southwest in quest of a brighter future.

Although registration was an integral part of college, the campus buzzed with more activity than just students scurrying to get books, to decorate dorms, and to complete paperwork.

Entire campus transforms during Fall Registration

While Jeannie Allred assists students in the Registrar's Office, Cody Smith waits patiently in the doorway and seeks directions.

Part-time administrator Jerry Reid lends a hand to students like Brandon Jackson in the Business Office.

Valerie Easley and Sally Coulter search for Becky Spencer's file and the files of hundreds of other students during registration.

Part of the process includes the making of IDs, and student worker Surbrina Forbes snaps a shot of Nathan Case for his ID.

Even though the bookstore is the final stop during registration, bookstore manager Lisa Stewart will see many of these students again throughout the semester.

Week ends with free food, free entertainment at Jamboree

Before classes began in earnest, students had an opportunity to meet new friends and revisit old stomping grounds at Bear Jamboree.

After attending only one day of classes, students gathered at John I. Hurst Stadium to watch the Bears scrimmage, to listen to the marching band, to meet the officers of various organizations and members of various athletic teams, to cheer with the new cheerleaders, and most importantly to eat free pizza.

The late afternoon scrimmage allowed coaches and players to devise or refine plays while fans got their first glimpse at the mighty Bears. For some, this event was their opportunity to see a collegiate team in action; for others, Bear Jamboree was their opportunity to root for their favorite Bear.

For all, however, it was a chance for students to see how their year was shaping up. And from the looks of happy faces, 2003-04 was shaping up to be a good one.

Stars shine at Homecoming '03

Participants enjoy perfect fall weather

If it's October, it must be time for homecoming, and October 4, 2003, marked another homecoming for Southwest to celebrate the return of former students and alumni and the presence of current students and personnel.

Students and faculty quickly got into the groove of things by dressing each day in "traditional" homecoming attire. Hillbilly Day was on Monday, Costume Day on Tuesday, Graffiti T-shirt on Wednesday, Hawaiian T-shirt on Thursday, and Homecoming T-shirt or school colors on Friday.

The annual homecoming dance that required weeks of planning, ordering supplies, and last-minute decorating was a complete success, as were the homecoming displays erected across campus by various organizations and on dorm doors by excited residents. To get everyone in the homecoming spirit, an assembly was held to introduce the homecoming court, and a pep rally followed to encourage the guys to snatch a win from the undefeated Jones County Junior College Bobcats.

After a week of dressing, dancing, and decorating, Saturday arrived and homecoming festivities began in earnest. A 5K walk/run began at 8:00 with registration beginning at 7:00. Awards went to the overall best male and female and to the top times in various age groups, so none were excluded.

A one-mile fun run began at 9:00. Participants received ribbons for their efforts, and trophies went to the top male and female and top times in five age groups. In other words, winners abounded.

Later in the day, visitors had opportunities to tour dorms and buildings, to listen to an afternoon stage band performance, to reunite with other alumni at a reception, to enjoy a home-cooked meal at the alumni banquet, to watch the coronation of the Queen and her Maids, and to cheer for the Bears in action against the Bobcats.

With filled tummies, armloads of roses, and a crowned queen, it was time for football action.

Dad smiles as he watches his daughter, Dawn Ashley, receive the crown from last year's queen, Laurie Allen.

Freshman Maid Emily Lambuth waves to the crowd as she passes.

Many begin, but few win. The weather was perfect for the annual 5K walk/run that marked the beginning of Homecoming Day '03, so no one minded getting up early on a Saturday morning.

Many contribute to make Homecoming '03 special

With the crowds cheering in the stands, the Homecoming Court seated on the sidelines, and the football team charging onto the field, homecoming frenzy filled the night.

What began on a high note during the evening, unfortunately, ended on a low note as the No. 7 and nationally ranked Bobcats defeated the Bears 17-14 at John I. Hurst Stadium. The homecoming loss dropped Southwest to 2-3 for the year and 0-2 in the south division.

"We could easily be 5-0," stated Bear coach Dom Green. "We started off slow offensively tonight. Jones did a good job of keeping us confused with their defense in the first half. We did a good job in the second half, but we fell short."

Trailing 7-0 at the half, Southwest rebounded but not before falling 14 points behind with 6:59 left in the third quarter. Fortunately, the Bears began to rally midway through the third quarter with quarterback Reggie Lindsey at the helm.

With 2:06 left in the third quarter the Bears scored, but failed on their pass attempt for two. With 13:37 left in the game and the score 14-6, the Bears redeemed themselves when Lindsey tied the score after a 24-yard touchdown, followed by a two-point conversion pass to C. J. Hawthorne.

Jones retaliated with a 35-yard field goal with 8:40 remaining in the game. The Bobcats sealed the fate of the Bears with an interception and only one minute remaining on the clock.

The narrow loss on the field was the culmination of a week of festivities, but no one viewed any part of this week as a loss. Organization members gained new memories and friendships as they decorated for the homecoming dance or erected homecoming displays. The 5K participants carried trophies and ribbons home to mount in prominent places. The Homecoming Court received notoriety, if only for a few minutes. And returning alumni renewed old friendships and rekindled that flame for Southwest.

All left campus as winners filled with memories of Homecoming '03, some maybe more than others. Many had traveled hundreds of miles while some had ventured only minutes away from home to return to the fertile soils of Southwest that had nurtured and grown friendships and lasting relationships so many years ago.

The following week campus returned to normal . . . no more costumes, no more displays, no more cheering crowds. However, the normal routine of classes, organizational meetings, labs, practices, and homework are the other aspects that shape the future of Southwest Bears.

Not even royalty can resist a phone call, even if it is an important night.

From their viewing stand on the sidelines, Danelle Nunaley waves to a fan as Karen Harris watches the game.

While Lieutenant Governor Amy Tucker visits campus to campaign for her re-election in the November general election, Renee Tolliver gets Tuck to autograph her graffiti T-shirt.

Stars come home

Former stars earn fitting tribute

As the evenings turned cool and the multi-colored leaves fell to cover the green grass of summer, Southwest alumni knew it was time to think about their return to Southwest on October 4, 2003, to reunite with old friends and to celebrate the induction of three of their finest into history.

Even though the campus buzzed with activities throughout the week, on Saturday the action for alumni heated up. From 10:00 until 11:00, they had the opportunity to tour the dormitories, followed by a Stage Band Show in the Fine Arts Auditorium at 2:30. At 3:00 until 4:30, a reception in the Horace C. Holmes Student Union was held for alumni prior to its general business meeting and banquet.

For three honorees, Betty Norman, Vannie Edwards, and Robert Earl Vince, the highlight of their evening occurred during the banquet where Alumni of the Year Betty Norman joined Sports Hall of Famers Vannie Edwards and Robert Earl Vince.

Born February 17, 1932, in Silsby, Texas, and married to Hugh "Pete" Norman, Betty Norman graduated from Summit High School in 1949, Southwest Mississippi Junior College in 1951, and Mississippi State University in 1953. In addition to her degrees, Norman continued her education with graduate work at Mississippi State University, the University of Southern Mississippi, Mississippi College, and Southeastern Louisiana University.

During her career, she was an elementary teacher in Pearl and an English teacher at Wingfield High School in Jackson, Pierce Junior High in Tampa, Florida, and Judson Walker Junior High in Orlando, Florida. Returning to Pike County, Norman taught elementary and English classes at Parklane Academy, where she wrote the lyrics to the Parklane Academy alma mater. While at Parklane she sponsored various organizations.

As a student at Southwest, Norman's involvement was extensive - majorette, drum major, president of the Mississippi Junior College Press Association, Pine Burr editor and reporter, Whispering Pines staff member, member of dormerettes, secretary of Treble Clef, and vice-president of the Glee Club.

Her ties and loyalty to Southwest remained long after her departure, evidenced by her lifetime membership in the SMCC Alumni Association.

Norman, now retired, and her husband have four children, all of whom attended Southwest, and seven grandchildren.

Sports Hall of Fame inductee Robert E. Vince, born December 19, 1930, in Walthall County, graduated from Dexter High School in 1948, Southwest Mississippi Junior College in 1950, and the University of Southern Mississippi in 1957.

Vince, married to the former Mary L. Breland, began his teaching career in 1952 at Improve and moved to Lexie to teach after the Improve school closed in 1955. In 1960, Lexie consolidated with Tylertown, yet Vince continued to teach and coach girls varsity basketball at Tylertown for five years, compiling 125 wins and 25 losses. His team won the South Little Dixie Conference for five consecutive years.

After Tylertown, Vince transferred to the Washington Parish School System in 1966 as a teacher and coach, where he remained until his 1985 retirement. While in Louisiana, he led three teams to the Louisiana State finals and compiled a record of 615 wins and 210 losses in both girls and boys varsity basketball.

In 1979, he was elected to the Mississippi House of Representatives, serving from 1980 to 2000 and is a candidate in the upcoming November general election.

Southwest's final honoree, Vannie M. Edwards, born June 16, 1936, in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, was inducted into the Sports Hall of Fame during Homecoming festivities as well. Attending Southwest Mississippi Junior College from 1955-56, Edwards received a Bachelor's Degree in physical education from Southeastern Louisiana University in Hammond, Louisiana, and a master's degree in education from Louisiana State University.

Married to the former Bobbie Chachery of Baton Rouge and currently residing in Norman, Arkansas, Edwards is a retired teacher from the Louisiana public school system. He retired from coaching women's gymnastics in 1980.

At Southwest, he lettered in three major sports - football, basketball, and baseball. He was a backup quarterback on the football team, played guard on the basketball team, and played catcher on the state championship baseball team.

Additionally, Edwards owned and operated Camp Olympia in Franklin County, a summer all-around camp for girls and boys, from 1964 to 1975.

Edwards's athletic abilities transferred to his coaching abilities as he earned an outstanding gymnastic record at each school he served as coach, including five championship teams while at Centenary College.

Edwards received national acclaim when he represented the United States women's Olympic gymnastic teams in various competitions, including individual standout Olympic medallist Kathy Johnson, the first American woman to win the American Gymnastic Cup.

Serving as chairperson for the U. S.

Olympic Committee from 1966 to 1972, Edwards was a member of the U. S. Foreign Relations Committee for Sports from 1970 to 1976. Being a Hall of Fame inductee is not foreign to Edwards as he is a member of the U. S. Gymnastic Federation Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City, a member of the Centenary College Hall of Fame, and the Shreveport Sports Hall of Fame.

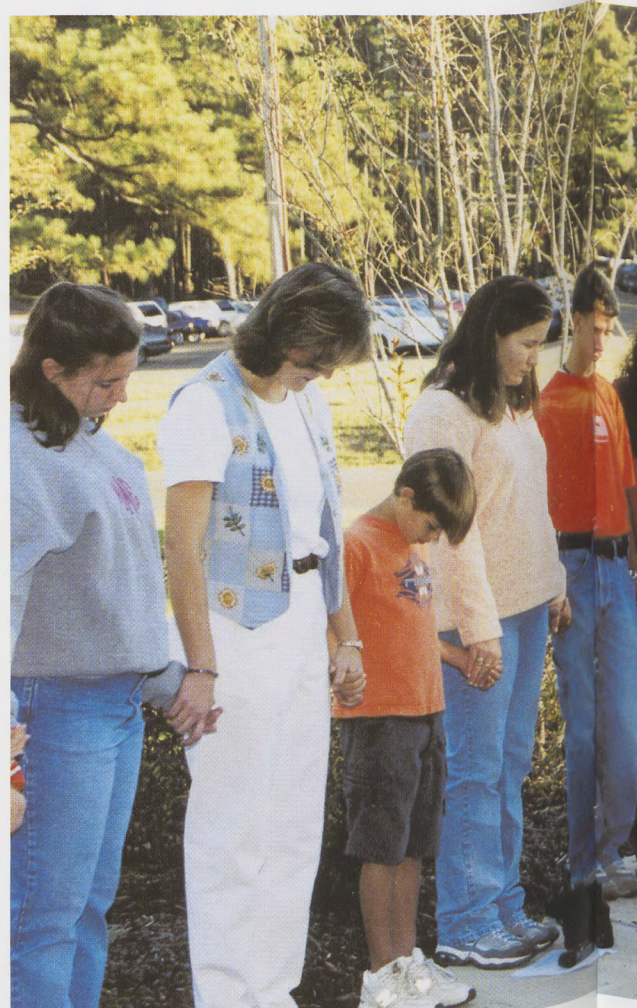

Although these three former students, these "stars," received special honors, all Southwest students are stars that leave this campus to shine brightly in a dark world. They contribute their time and talents to others, often receiving little or no attention. How did these students become stars? Their days as Bears shaped them for demanding times.

Plenty of room for reminiscing exists in the Horace C. Holmes Student Union. Alumni, visitors, and friends visited in the private dining area, the foyer, the cafeteria, and on the spiraling staircase.

Each October, little munchkins roam campus in search of goodies. Political science and history instructor Paul Dancisin greets and appeases them.

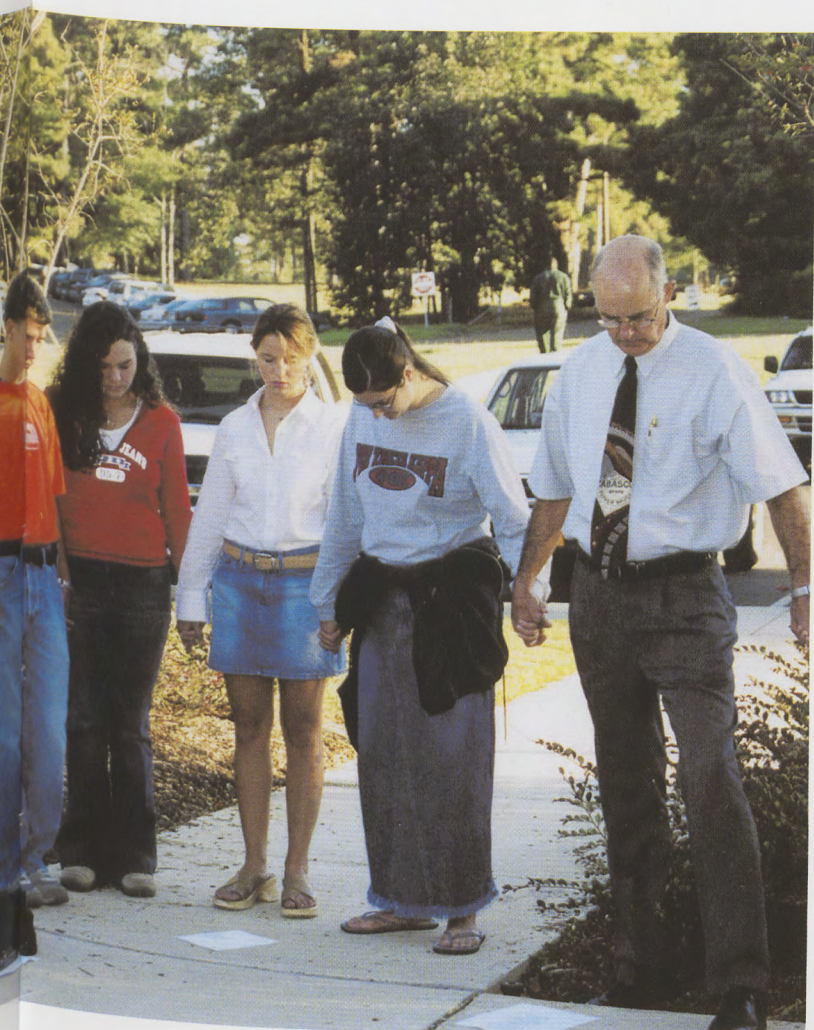

Mississippi State representatives like this one try their best to encourage students to attend State after graduating from Southwest. Although Jessica Moore and Kim Conerly listened intently, they remained unmoved by his persuasion. These young ladies visited many booths during the annual Career Fair, held in November.

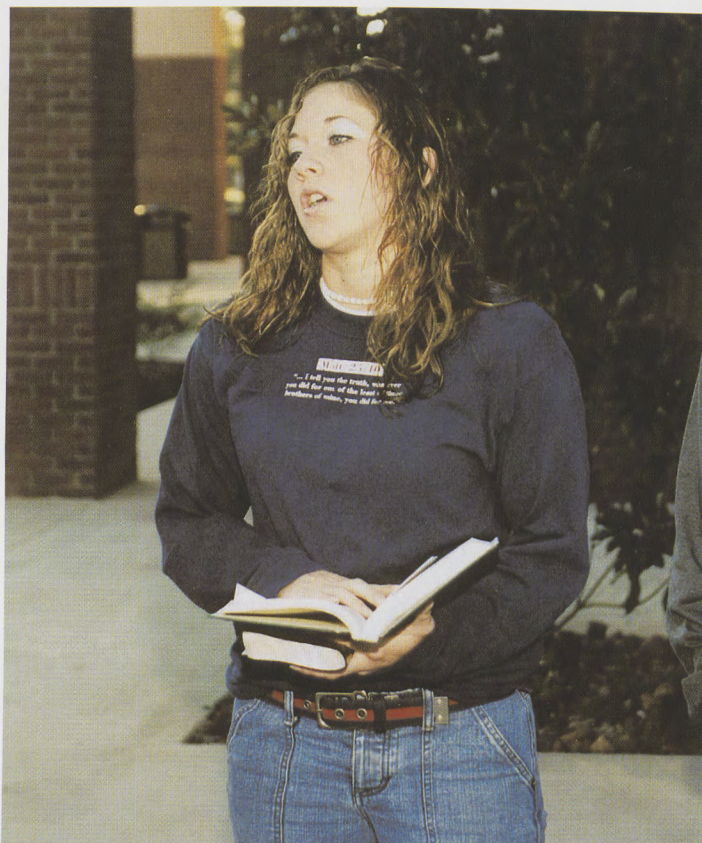

Southwest's first lighting of the SMCC Christmas Tree is a success, thanks to Connie Lambuth's hard work in decorating, for the choir's leading the audience in Christmas carols, and for the cafeteria staff's delicious snacks.

Administrators, faculty, SMCC students, campus leaders, and children of faculty join together in prayer at SYATP. Emily Garner (below) presented the devotional for the event.

Events occur across campus

College life encompasses more than books and computers

Each semester, activities occur across campus that attract attention and encourage participation. Fall 2003 was no different.

Each week students had chances to do something different, whether it was to vote for class officers, Who's Who, or homecoming maids or to give blood to save a life, students could find many areas for participation.

On September 17, 2003, the religious organizations on campus sponsored See You at the Pole (SYATP) in front of the Horace C. Holmes Student Union before 8:00 classes.

Weekly meetings brought religious organizations together for praise, worship, and fellowship within their own denominations, but SYATP brought all denominations together as one for praise, prayer, and worship.

During the semester, the Student Government Association sponsored several blood drives so that donors could give the gift of life to others. In scarce supply, blood of all types was needed, so students, faculty, and staff freely gave.

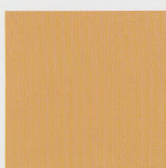

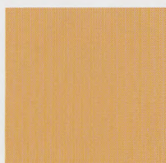

To show area students what Southwest offers its students, Southwest sponsored Discover Southwest Night on October 9, 2003, prior to the Bears' football game against Pearl River. This annual event gave interested students the opportunity to meet with Southwest faculty to discuss their future educational goals and career interests. Bear Trackers were on hand to answer questions as well. While on campus area seniors enjoyed snacks and the football game, thanks to complimentary tickets.

Each week seemed to bring a new activity or experience, whether it was to give blood, worship God with fellow Christians, or meet perspective Bears. As the semester progressed, students learned that more occurred at college than merely assignments involving books and computers.

First time blood donor Kayla Hamilton looks away as the tech prepares to make the initial stick. Kayla's willingness to give exemplified the actions of many students who gave, some for the very first time.

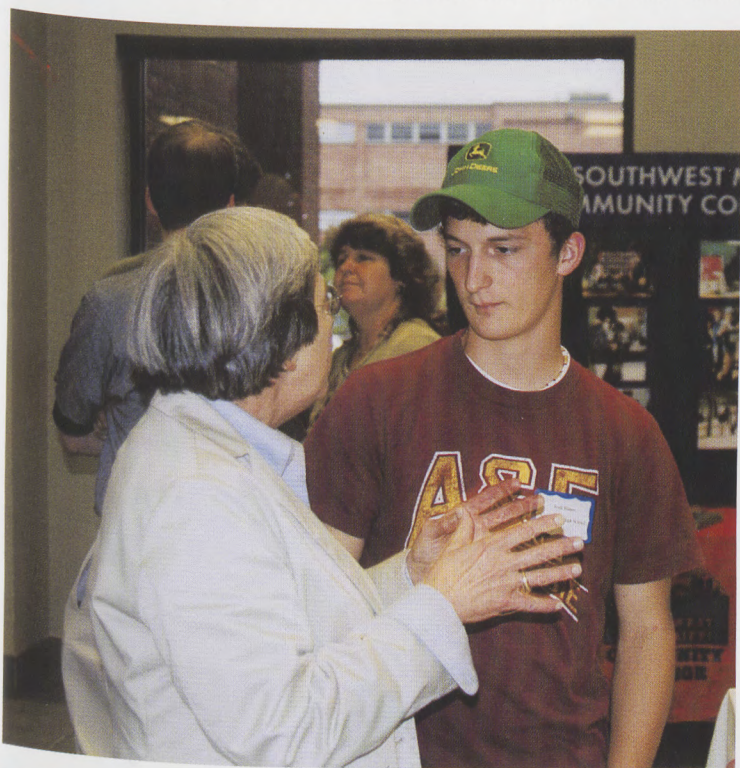

Instructor and ornithologist Carla Griffin gives an interesting presentation on birds native to southwest Mississippi.

With Southwest personnel Susan Hedges and Breeze Alford in the background, Teresa Wilson, receptionist, extends a hardy welcome to Marsha Barbour.

Discover Southwest Night affords perspective students the opportunity to meet current faculty to discuss career options. History instructor Merrielyn Ginn addressed Josh Rimes' questions while music instructor Connie Lambuth assisted Jacqueline Dupree.

Christmas tree lighting becomes newest campus event

Several significant events happened during October. First, the children from the Child Care Technology program paraded across campus in their Halloween costumes, Marsha Barbour arrived on campus to campaign for her husband in the upcoming governor's election in November, and Southwest's own Carla Griffin presented a program on the birds native to southwest Mississippi during Humanities Month.

On November 5, 2003, the Career Center hosted a Career Fair. Colleges, health care facilities, military personnel, and businesses set up booths and answered questions from Southwest students and district seniors.

A first for Southwest occurred on December 1, 2003. To get everyone in the Christmas spirit, Southwest held its first "Lighting of the SMCC Christmas Tree." Music instructor Connie Lambuth spent hours decorating the tree for this special event that was sure to be an annual occurrence. The choir led all attendees in traditional Christmas carols, and then enjoyed snacks as they visited with each other.

Those students who participated in any or all of these events soon discovered that every event, every special moment at Southwest was helping to shape their lives in some way.

Associate Degree Nursing • Humanities • Mathematics/Science • Social Sciences

Academic divisions shape students for demanding world

When students think of classes on campus, they think of two major divisions - vo-tech and academic. Even separate degrees, AA for academic graduates or AS for technical graduates, make clear distinctions between the two, yet vo-tech and academics cross inside classrooms as students from both areas work together on projects.

In a broader sense, however, the vast majority of students enrolled in academics as they completed two years credit at an affordable cost before transferring to a four-year institution to earn a bachelor's degree. The Associate Degree Nursing program was the only exception to the rule. After completing one year of pre-requisites and gaining acceptance into the nursing program, students could emerge graduates after only two years.

The humanities encompassed subjects concerned with human thought and culture. Although all students could enroll in any of the humanities, Honors Forum consisted of students who received invitations to join. As a group these students learned the characteristics and qualities of good leaders.

Studies in mathematics and sciences proved the most challenging for most students. In addition to time in lecture and lab, students devoted hours to studying outside the "learning" environment in hopes of grasping pertinent concepts.

Through the social sciences students learned more about themselves as individuals and groups. Without a doubt, students found many topics of interest among these four divisions.

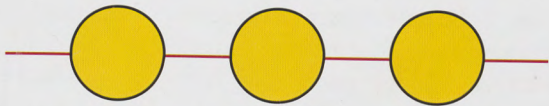

Biology lab partners Hillary Branch and Lisa Easley check each other's progress. This experiment brought a whole new meaning to "brown bag specials."

Spring brings Spring Fever and trips to the lake, or in this case, a nearby pond. Zoology students like Lucy Savorgnan, who flashes a glance at Dr. Bud Culley, enjoy leaving campus for an afternoon of lab experiments in the real elements. Fortunately for Southwest students, a pond near campus awaits the spring adventurers who come to investigate its ecology systems.

Practicing before they begin clinicals, Litane Jiles and Stephanie Huguley talk themselves through the procedures.

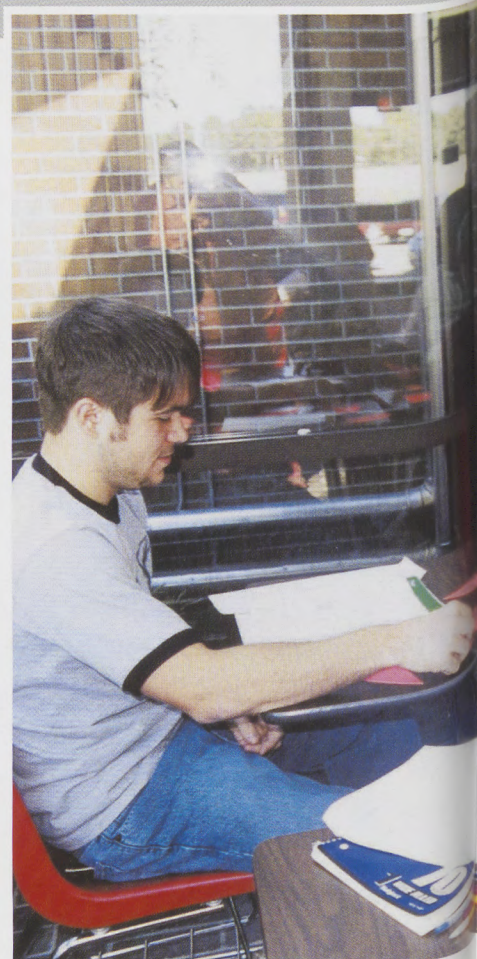

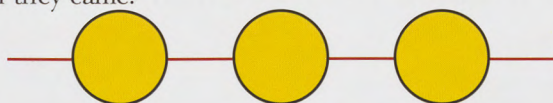

To get a good grade, sometimes you have to dress the part as Adrienne Dardar does for her speech on the Houma Indians.

One of the most agonizing subjects for many students to encounter in their pursuit of a degree was a course in mathematics. Fear gripped them at first and often hindered their ability to grasp concepts quickly. Through patience and persistence, they survived and took pride in their accomplishments.

A math course existed for all. Students lacking a solid background in algebra enrolled in Elementary or Intermediate Algebra for future success in College Algebra. Elementary education majors took Real Numbers to learn the basics while business majors learned business basics through Statistics or Finite Math courses.

By far the greatest math challenges lay in Trigonometry, followed by classes in Calculus and Differential Equations, courses required of computer science, engineering, or math majors. Though classes were smaller, the intensity and level of difficulty were greater.

Whatever the math, students left in better shape than when they came.

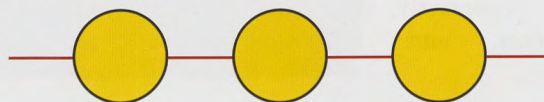

Ever wonder what those little shapes are when you look through a microscope? Are they friend or foe? Students with inquisitive minds got answers to many of their questions in lectures and laboratory experiences that accompanied the sciences.

Instructors in chemistry, physics, biology, botany, zoology, microbiology, and anatomy and physiology provided weekly experiments and lectures that enabled students to gain a clearer understanding of their surrounding world and their role in this world. If the lab itself limited discovery, students moved outdoors to examine ecosystems across campus or in a nearby pond.

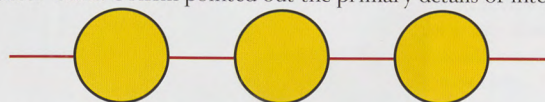

Detailed study of the cell, tissues, skin, bones, muscles, tissues, and various body systems in anatomy and physiology classes coupled with instruction about microbes, genetics, parasites, and bacteria in microbiology prepared students desiring careers as health care professionals. Answers to "Why" or "How" extended to chemistry and physics.

Students in the sciences soon discovered what those little microscopic shapes were and how force altered the shape of matter. Over time, misconceptions and misunderstanding ended.

One of the many advantages of attending a community college such as Southwest is the individualized attention and instruction that students like Rena Williams receive from instructors like Dora Richardson. Whether the basis for problems in math stems from math phobia or not, students sought extra assistance from the many algebra instructors and found that these instructors were more than willing to help.

Protected by sterile gloves, freshman nursing student David Dancisin examines his kit before inserting a catheter into his "patient."

Geographically, our world contains countries and nations of various shapes and dimensions, and the people of these spaces and places are extremely diverse. Thus, studies in the social sciences covered a broad spectrum of topics to assist students in understanding themselves and others, and business courses prepared these individuals for work in and with businesses.

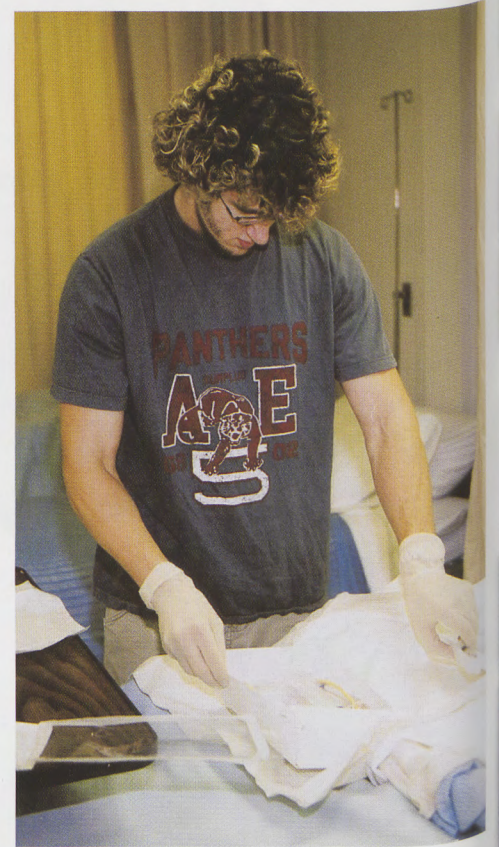

In Old and New Testament classes, students examined the Bible and discover biblical truths. Histories furnished an in-depth study into how civilizations have evolved and how past events affected and predicted future events.

In Economics I and II, students learned how pricing and quantity through supply and demand affected their wallets. Through classroom discussion and daily homework, accounting students learned to debit and credit correctly, create income statements, and analyze business practices. Business Law emphasized adhering to established laws.

Psychology courses focused on the individual while sociology examined groups. With students of varying backgrounds, habits, and beliefs uniting for a common goal, an education, instruction centered around methods that taught students to respect differences. For example, students in Susan Hedges' sociology classes experienced cultural differences through a deck of cards. Divided into groups, students played games following a different set of rules for each group. As students moved from group to group, communicating with each other without speaking while adapting to a new set of rules challenged them.

Therefore, social science and business courses were more than textbooks, lectures, and quizzes. Activities promoted self analysis, reflection, and perfection.

One of the most difficult and demanding careers today is nursing because trained nurses must quickly determine the physical "shape" of a patient and react quickly in emergency situations. Southwest's Associate Degree Nursing (ADN) program prepares its graduates to become registered nurses who will meet the expanding health care needs of the community. Its curriculum includes a balance of general education, current nursing theory, and laboratory experience.

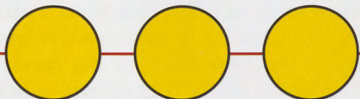

Students in the ADN program spent hours in lecture, lab, and clinical situations and even more hours in study as they endeavored to grasp and absorb hundreds of pages of concepts and theory. Clinicals helped clear many concepts as students saw puzzle pieces fit together.

Even though nursing required hard work and patience, many saw the nursing profession as a calling to help others. In addition, the rewards and opportunities for employment are plentiful as the need for qualified health care professionals continues to rise.

The humanities division encompasses a myriad of courses relating to fine arts, languages, and physical fitness. From music to art, shapes were everywhere in the Fine Arts department. And whether you sought a degree in art or music or just needed a class to fulfill your major requirement, an interesting class awaited you.

Some students preferred art classes. In Drawing I and II, students put pencils and paint brushes to the test as they sketched still life or campus scenes. On sunny days, students flanked the banks of Bear Lake or climbed aboard tailgates to capture the perfect view of campus on canvas. Art for Elementary Teachers prepared elementary education majors for today's classroom, and Art Appreciation classes detailed art's history.

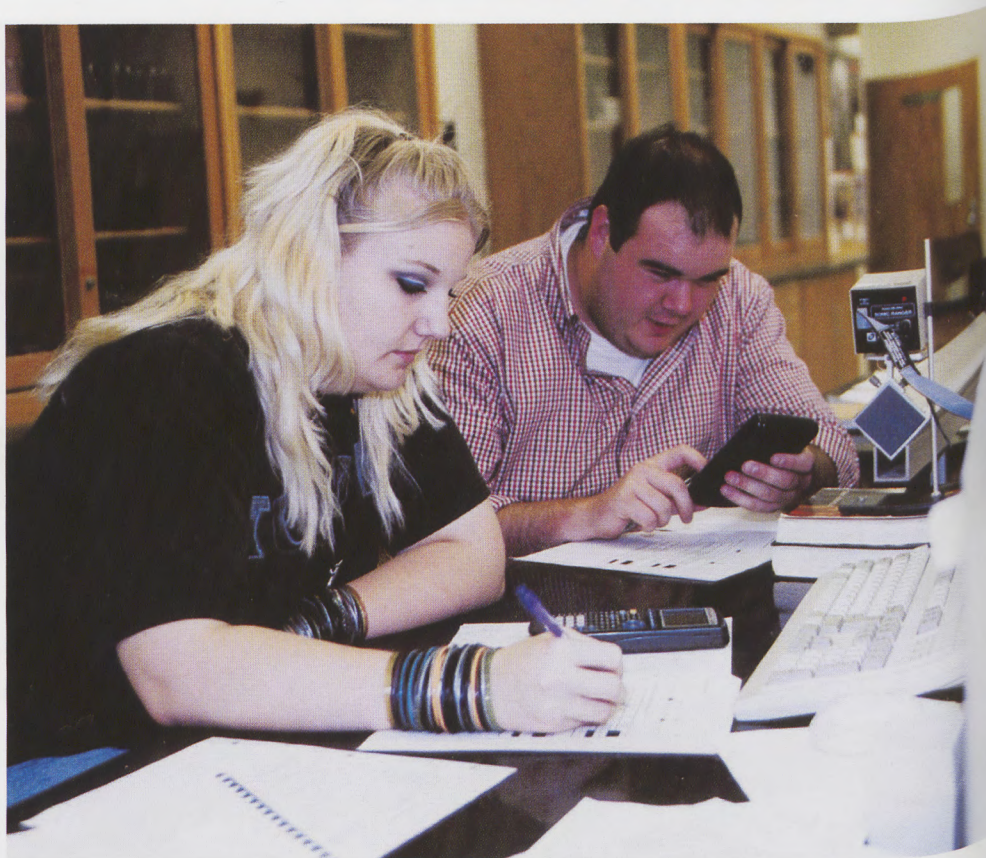

Students who enjoyed music rather than art found courses too - Music Appreciation, Music Theory, and Music History. Students wishing to refine or gain musical skills through individualized instruction enrolled in means.

Essays in Comp I encouraged students to convey their views through writings. Comp II students scrutinized the writings of others through their poetry and short stories. To demonstrate their understanding of the literary elements authors use in their works, Comp II students compiled a paper based on information gathered through extensive research of a particular author or work.

A study in literature continued in British literature, where students gained a clearer understanding of the genre that shaped the English language. Students desiring more intense grammar review or students majoring in elementary education enrolled in Traditional Grammar. Some students had not been in a classroom setting for many years, so they opted to brush-up on their grammar and writing skills through developmental English classes.

Students seeking an additional language challenge found Spanish and German to be the answer. Dealing with a more diverse patient population prompted some students seeking a career as a health care professional to learn pertinent, often lifesaving, information through Medical Spanish.

Students not only wrote the English language, but they also had to speak it correctly in speech classes, a requirement for graduation. The skills and confidence students learned through speech classes enabled them to become better communicators in today's world.

Health and physical education classes encouraged students to get into shape through proper nutrition and exercise, creating a lifestyle that ideally results in a long, healthy, productive life.

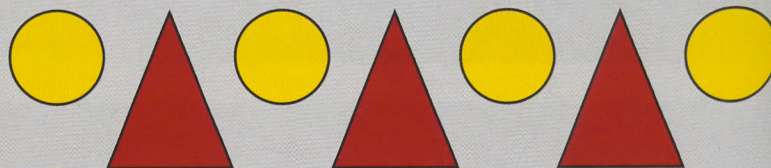

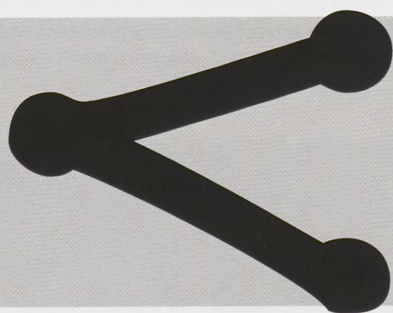

From how civilization shaped our language and life to how food and exercise shaped our bodies, humanities classes covered them all.

o-Tech

Programs remain on cutting edge of technology shaping the nation

Need to make a career change? Got eight weeks? Why? In just eight weeks you can receive the training necessary to drive a big rig across country.

Perhaps this eight-week venture is not for you. Then approximately twenty other vocational-technical programs exist that require only two years for completion rather than the academic route that requires a minimum of four years to complete a program of study. After two years in Southwest's technical programs, graduates are equipped with the skills needed to survive and excel in the workforce.

Understanding the needs of their students, vo-tech instructors helped their students find programs suited to their abilities and interests. Although the traditional freshmen and sophomores dominated the classrooms, more and more non-traditional students reentered school after a long absence to sharpen their skills or to learn a new trade to qualify for the technical job market. With a vast variety of programs from which to choose, everyone found his/her niche.

Southwest understands the demands industry places on its employees and continually evaluates its programs to ensure that they satisfy the demand for strong, skilled technologists to make Mississippians competitive and qualified for high-paying jobs. Over and over, Southwest vo-tech graduates proved their ability to compete as they entered the job market geared with the knowledge and determination to succeed.

Two vo-tech programs earned the distinction of 100 percent passage rate for their graduates who required board certifications. Out of 924 taking the National Ground Water Association's standardized exam, only 39 percent passed. However, 100 percent of Southwest students completing the Well Construction Technology program passed national exams.

Additionally, on their standardized boards, 100 percent of the LPN graduates passed as well, a first for Southwest in recent years.

Obviously, the Southwest vo-tech division was accomplishing its goal of producing graduates today for a better tomorrow.

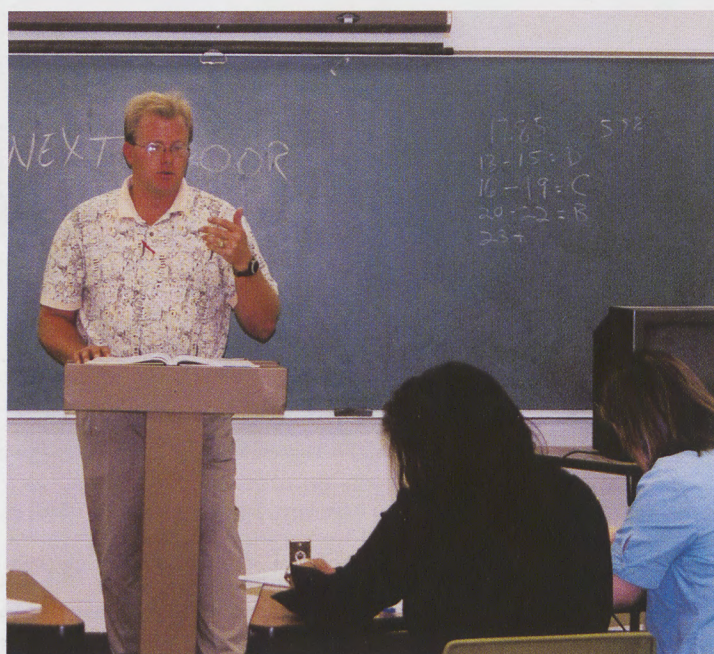

Lunch time is even more special when you have bear sandwiches to eat, which is exactly what these children from the Child Development Technology program enjoy in the dining hall. Student caregivers assisted children in crafting their "bears" before allowing them to eat them.

Southwest, however, had a 100% passage rate, far above the national average!

upport Services

Services help shape students into success stories

Need help while at Southwest or after entering the workforce? Whatever the situation, Southwest has you covered.

The Library-Learning Resources Center (LLRC), commonly called the library, and its Learning Lab, housed in the library, served as a support service to its many patrons who needed materials for speeches, projects, or papers or who needed that special, individualized attention regarding a particular subject.

Rather than search the Internet, some preferred to check-out books for a more tangible approach, so they used the library's WebCat to search for in-house texts. Patrons read local newspapers and current magazines, attended class in adjoining classrooms, studied in carrels, study rooms, or vacant tables, and photocopied materials.

The Learning Lab buzzed with activity as students typed papers, outlines, or handouts, checked their e-mail accounts, and studied the various tutorials. If computerized tutoring did not suffice, tutors were on hand for that one-on-one human touch.

Just as the LLRC endeavored to ensure the success of Southwest students, the One-Stop Career Center endeavored to ensure the success of the community. Located in Kenna Hall, the One-Stop Career Center serves as a liaison between Southwest and community by assisting employees of new and existing businesses and industries in meeting their technical training requirements or in upgrading their basic skill levels to meet the demands of a changing job market.

Yet, the Career Center addressed more than just today's employees. The Institute for Learning in Retirement targeted persons fifty years of age or older and provided on-going services for them, including yoga, art lessons, trips, and monthly meetings to discuss pertinent issues affecting them. The Career Planning and Assessment Lab targeted today's students and attempted to direct them into a career path suited to their interests and talents.

Whether helping patrons in the LLRC or the One-Stop Career Center, Southwest's support services aimed to shape patrons, young and old, employed or retired, into success stories.

Organizations across campus beckoned students to involvement.

From weekly meetings in the BSU, Wesley, or Catholic organizations to working together with student body representatives in the Student Government Association, students had opportunities to participate. Through this involvement, students found common ground with other Bears who shared similar interests, goals, and beliefs. As a result, friendships developed, and student exhibited their talents as leaders, volunteers, supporters, and encouragers. More importantly, Bears learned to listen, to respect others, and to give freely of their time and talents.

Being part of an organization and learning to work with others shaped students for their role as productive U. S. citizens and as leaders in the workforce and community.

... Student Government Association

Southwest students have opportunities to assume various leadership positions in the many organizations across campus. However, those students wishing to "get their feet wet" in politics had the opportunity to participate in a full-blown campaign. Student Government Association (SGA) elections are held each spring to elect a president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer to lead the student body.

Each fall, freshman and sophomore classes nominate and elect class officers to this governing body. With weekly meetings, these campus-wide leaders saw government in action as they planned the many events for the entire student body.

SGA members designed and sold T-shirts for homecoming and spring dances, sponsored blood drives, hosted Bear Jamboree, selected a homecoming theme, decorated for the annual homecoming dance and spring formal, and created homecoming displays. If all of these activities weren't enough, SGA hosted another dance at the beginning of the new school term to encourage students to learn one another before the grind of classes began.

Through involvement on this small scale, students learned the importance of supporting and electing the qualified persons for leadership positions - a practice that ideally will extend to local, state, and national elections as these current leaders and citizens vote in elections on a larger scale for candidates that shape their futures.

PTK's honor project, "Tracking Down a Cure for Cancer," had a special interest to the group since sponsor Diane Turnage's mother is a breast cancer survivor. To collect money for the American Cancer Society and the organization's trip to the International Convention in Minneapolis, PTK sponsored several fundraisers, including cheese sales, donations for pink ribbons during October (cancer awareness month), and tickets to the McRae's Charity sale in addition to their regular service projects of assisting SGA at assembly and Career Day.

Each year PTK nominates students for the All-USA Academic team. This year's nominees were Emily Polk, President, and Mallory Magee, VP of Leadership.

In monthly meetings and state and national conventions, members had an opportunity to fellowship and network with other chapter members who shared common interests, drives, and goals.

Although you must "make the grade" to enter PTK, members soon discovered that making the grade was not enough. Although a combination of scholarship, fellowship, leadership, and service were ingredients for obtaining five-star status in PTK, these same ingredients are necessary for shaping the world.

Established in the 1999-2000 school year as a formal student ambassador group to help recruit college students to Southwest, Bear Trackers remain on the prowl for new Bears.

This year the group consisted of twenty-three members who volunteered their time with many campus activities. Bear Trackers assisted with freshman orientation sessions during the summer, helped students move into the girl's dorm, distributed cokes at Bear Jamboree, assisted with Discover Southwest Night, and greeted visiting high school students at the Career Fair. Along with the counselors and other faculty members, they recruited students

. . . Campus Ministries

To shape the spiritual development of its students, Southwest supports three Christian organizations on campus - the Baptist Student Union (BSU), the Wesley Foundation (Wesley), and the Catholic Campus Ministry (CCM). Although each organization supported different denominations, all students were welcome to any of the three organizations that met weekly.

Food may have been the drawing card each Tuesday at CCM and Wednesday at BSU, but the fellowship, prayer time, and weekly devotions nourished spirits and reassured students of the hope they have in Jesus Christ.

Clint Goss of Brookhaven led the CCM with worship in the old cafeteria, while Rowland Hall of McComb, a regular visitor and speaker to past BSU meetings, served as interim BSU leader. Both men ensured that the meetings focused on worship, praise, and service.

When the pressures of school, work, family, dating, and assignments seemed overwhelming, students could share these concerns with fellow Christians who prayed with them for peace, guidance, and direction. The Christian ministries across campus provided safe havens for the nourishment of the soul while ministry leaders shared the spiritual truth of God's love for mankind.

Good health can't be bought - a sad, but true fact. Learning through required courses how essential good health is to well being, associate and pre-associate degree nursing students came together in the Student Nurses Organization (SNO) to discuss issues relevant to healthy lifestyles and to listen to speakers discuss current health topics.

SNO membership represents both the Mississippi Organization of ADN Student Association (MOSA) and the Mississippi Association of Student Nurses (MASN). Members attended both state and national conventions, where they networked with other nursing students to share information and methods for promoting good health.

Realizing the importance of preventative measures and that blood pressure problems are a silent killer among many, SNO members went to downtown Summit during Summit Fall Fest to screen shoppers and sightseers. These trained experts provided free blood pressure screenings to all takers.

While prices on goods continue to rise, so does the price for health care. Hopefully, these SNO members will have opportunities to educate the public about the importance of adopting and maintaining good health habits for quality living.

Where is Nova Scotia? What is wind chill? What is the association between Jimmy Hoffa and the Teamsters Union? Who were the primary characters in Anne of Green Gables? Questions like these are asked each week in Scholars Bowl.

Students with a competitive nature did not have to travel to Hollywood or other locations to audition for Jeopardy. Instead, they merely strolled across campus to the science building where they met with other trivia buffs to test their skills and tax their brains.

Based on a format similar to the famous television show Jeopardy, Scholars Bowl participants pitted their skills against fellow competitors in preparation for the big match each February at Ole Miss. Each week, members practiced and prepared for challenges as their sponsor Matt Calhoun drilled them. They quickly learned the advantages of team play as each team member brought a certain area of expertise to the game. When a question appeared in their specialty category, it was time for quick action.

Speed coupled with knowledge seemed to be the key to success. And, if they did not know an answer, hearing a new question and answer increased their mental database.

Committed to making a difference

... Future Educators of America

Perhaps of the most influential person in a student's life is his/her teacher. Understanding their role in education, future teachers joined Future Educators of America (FEA) to explore teaching as a career option, to help gain a realistic understanding of the nature of education and the role of the teacher, and to coordinate information about teaching as a profession.

Tutoring, a requirement for members, enlightened these future teachers regarding the needs and demands of an educator. Placed with students who had been recommended for additional assistance by their elementary teachers, FEA members gained real experience on a small scale.

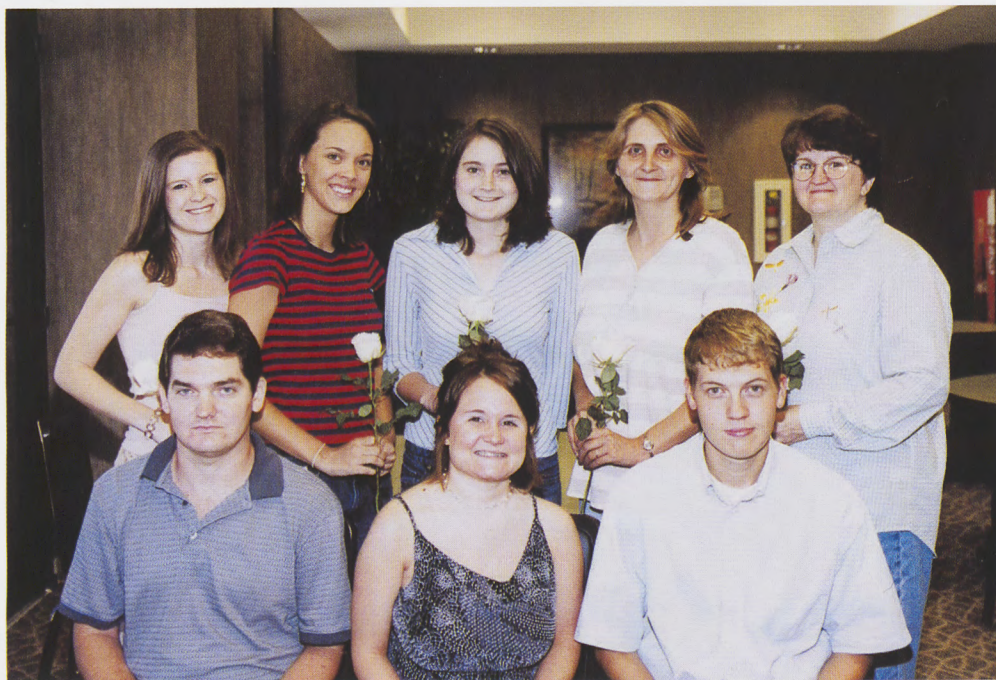

They took the challenge seriously as they committed themselves to making a difference in the life of each child.

For the fall induction, Mr. Bill Sharp, a retired principal, spoke to the organization and challenged new and old members to study diligently because one day they will understand how theory works in practice. Using his forty-one years of experience as a guide, he offered pointers to these future teachers who will enter classrooms as first-year teachers.

From knowledge gained through curriculum to hands-on experience with children, these FEA members learned the importance in making a difference.

Striving for excellence in the marketplace

... Delta Epsilon Chi

One advantage to living in the United States is our free market system that allows entrepreneurs to explore opportunities for business ownership.

Marketing students enrolled in marketing classes examined the free market system and learned marketing basics. Some marketing students went beyond the classroom and participated in Delta Epsilon Chi where they had the opportunity to compete with other marketing students from all Mississippi community colleges with marketing programs.

Perhaps one of the first concepts these students learned was that in order to market a product, they had to perform extensive research and examine the market for competitors and consumers.

As part of their course requirements, marketing students created and presented products to their peers and invited guests . . . all in preparation for their ultimate audience in the marketplace -- the consumer. These presentations prepared Delta Epsilon Chi members for upcoming competitions and enabled students to get a simulated grasp of what marketing and ownership entail.

Some of these Delta Epsilon Chi members may become business owners, but whether they own their own business or not, they now know the factors that shape our economic system and they know to examine the market and weigh their options before embarking into a new enterprise.

After weeks of work, Ella Martin, Josefina Davis, Andrew Lott, and Ryan Newell make last minute preparations to their advertising project before presenting. Advertising the 2004 Altima 2.5 S, these students and future members of Delta Epsilon Chi planned a campaign that targeted a specific population of students and professionals between the ages of 18-49.

... Phi Beta Lambda

Established four years ago, the Office Systems Technology Phi Beta Lambda (OST PBL) organization recruits Office Systems Technology students who desire to gain knowledge and skills in secretarial and related areas and who maintain a 2.5 GPA.

Phi Beta Lambda is a national association of more than 250,000 post secondary students interested in becoming more successful in the business world. Members met with the business community before beginning their job hunt and discovered how to talk confidently with prospective employers.

Members of Phi Beta Lambda learned to lead and participate in group discussion, preside at meetings and conferences, work within committees, and engage in practical decision-making and problem-solving activities.

Yet, Phi Beta Lambda is more than learning about businesses because OST PBL members learned about service as well. Projects included the March of Dimes WALK-AMERICA, where members raised $582 and placed second for the money they earned. Other projects included visits to local nursing homes and the Toys for Tots campaign.

OST PBL sponsors were Leanne Rutland, Leigh Anne Dwyer, and Kathy Boyte.

Move over OST PBL ...

Computer Information Systems Technology Phi Beta Lambda forms

Computer Information Systems Technology Phi Beta Lambda (CIST PBL), sponsored by Kim Evans, held its first initiation ceremony on October 23, 2003, in the Huddleston Vocational Technical Complex. Eighteen members were initiated.

The organization's purpose is to provide opportunities for students to develop vocational competencies for business and office occupations and business teacher education. Some of its goals are to develop competent, aggressive business leadership; to strengthen student confidence in themselves and their work; to develop character, prepare for useful citizenship and foster patriotism; to encourage scholarship and promote school loyalty; and to facilitate the transition from school to work.

The Computer Information Systems Technology curriculum is designed to offer training in the development of business application software.

Whether secretarial skills or computers skills were your "thing," PBL had an organization for you where you could network with others sharing common interests and goals.

During initiation ceremonies, Colter Cotton assumes the helm of the newest organization on campus, CIST PBL.

... Pine Burr, Whispering Pines

When are final exams? Who was Homecoming Queen? Students can find answers to these questions and others by reading the monthly paper, Pine Burr, or by scanning through the pages of the yearbook, Whispering Pines.

Even though the staff for both student publications was small, that fact didn't diminish the quality of both publications as dedicated students worked diligently to meet deadlines. They knew the importance of capturing the actions and activities of Southwest in print.

The Pine Burr staff met weekly to discuss current and upcoming events on campus. The articles helped students stay informed about educational programs, athletics, and general information of interest. As quickly as a paper "hit the stands" each month, students snatched them up to read about campus life. Hopefully, this quest for knowledge will continue long after the semester ends.

The Whispering Pines staff was busy as well compiling the information for the yearbook. Pictures seemed everywhere as staffers alphabetized 1,117 photos of students, faculty, and staff and cropped the pictures for inclusion into this year's edition.

Even though students looked forward to receiving their books in the spring, they will treasure them even more in the years to come as they flip through the pages and relive the many activities that helped shape their lives.

Pine Burr staff member William Kees gets assistance from Shari Crosby with mailing the Pine Burr to alumni.

Surrounded by pictures, Whispering Pines assistant editor Emily Lambuth takes her time in cropping each one.

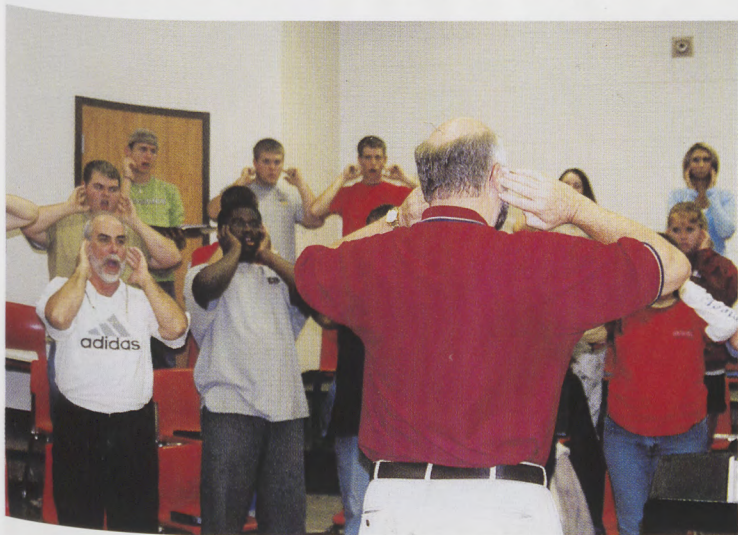

Alphabetizing over 1,100 pictures is quite a task, but Whispering Pines staffers Cynthia Murchie, Editor Kelly Thomas, Holly Myers, and Josh Ramee tackle the job with enthusiasm and patience.

... SMCC Choir

While visiting family and grandchildren, Dr. Richard Joiner, Joe Elliott's father-in-law, works with the choir during one of its weekly practices.

Whether you are a shower singer or a church soloist, you can continue to make a joyful noise as a member of the Southwest choir. Regardless of prior experience, weekly practices and performances promoted musical development and enhanced musical appreciation.

As usual, the choir stayed busy by singing to various churches and organizations and by preparing for performances, including a Fall concert. Each week Joe Elliot, their director, worked with the group to ensure that each performance was a success. He even enlisted his father-in-law's assistance when he came to visit. After Dr. Joiner's lecture, choir members better understood the dynamics of voice and sound production.

So, all sopranos, altos, tenors, and bass members of the SMCC choir followed the musical shapes and followed the notes to produce melodies for all to enjoy.

The Steel Drum Band performs two numbers for the audience. Band members included Joy Davis, Jerry Holmes, Kacy Rutland, Stacy Rutland, Erica Johnsey, Larissa Dixon, Emily Lambuth, Lindsay Sterling, Delanie Brooks, Victoria Scott, Kristen Prentiss, and Stevie Lott.

Rather than use any taped music, the Stage Band musicians provide all of the music for the entire show. The rhythm section included members Jeff Brown, Jude Crawford, Larissa Dixon, Ben Legg, Chaney Spiers, and Delanie Brooks.

The entire Stage Band spends weeks in practice before the big event. On sax were Ceria Benjamin, Will Ratcliff, Christy Baughtman, Kamie Dillon, and Kacy Rutland. On trombone were Titus Johnson, Portia Holmes, Kristen Prentiss, and Clarence Smith. Daniel Rankin, Lindsay Sterling, Chance Wilson, Robin Lea, Dale Brumfield, and Rebecca McKenzie played trumpets.

"Christmas Traditions" continue

... Stage Band

A Christmas tradition for southwest Mississippi and the surrounding area is the annual Stage Band Christmas shows. On December 4, 5, and 6, the Fine Arts Auditorium came alive with music for all ages to enjoy during the Stage Band's Christmas shows, entitled "Christmas Traditions."

From the opening number, "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," with the Stage Band musicians and singers, the audience remained captivated until the ending number, "I Have Seen the Light." The audience may have rested after the opening number, but the Stage Band got no rest as it accompanied singers and dancers and performed solo in "Winter Wonderland," "Let it Snow, Let it Snow, Let it Snow," and "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree."

Dressed in Santa suits, the Stage Band dancers, choreographed by former Stage Band member Brandy Knight, danced to "Funky 'Ol St. Nick" and served as substitute Santas until the real Santa came on Saturday night. They also danced to "Marshmallow World" and swooned over Cody Cameron in "Run, Rudolph, Run."

The Stage Band singers joined together to accompany the band in two additional numbers, a "Jingle Bells" medley and "Silent Night." The guys dreamed of a "White Christmas," Karinlee Brister longed for chestnuts roasting on an open fire in "The Christmas Song," Stevie Lott told the Grinch who stole Christmas that "You're a Mean One, Mr. Grinch," and Sarah Graves-Rushing encouraged the crowd to "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas."

Moving to a more serious tone, the band dedicated "I'll Be Home for Christmas," sung by Stevie Lott, to the many servicemen serving across the world. To remind the audience of the true meaning of Christmas, Cheri Causey sang "Love Came Down," and Cody Cameron sang "A Strange Way to Save the World."

Once again the crowd heard from the Steel Drum Band, one of only two such bands in the state, as they performed "Pan Christmas" and "Trepak." The addition of the steel drums has become the newest tradition to the Stage Band sound.

By the end of each performance, many had heard their favorite Christmas carol and may have even sung along. For certain, all left with the Christmas spirit in their hearts as they looked forward to celebrating Christmas Traditions with their families.

Nicki Benz, Clay Whittington's mom, shares her family tradition with the crowd by reading her family's favorite story, "Looking for Jesus."

Stage Band dancers Dee Dee Rawls, Crystal Ferguson, Sarah Graves-Rushing, Jennifer Morse, Coretta Johnson, and Jen Goodwin surround Cody Cameron, who sings "Run, Rudolph, Run."

With Cody Cameron in front and Cheri Causey, Joey Pope, Karinlee Brister, Derek Burchfield, Sarah Graves-Rushing, Stevie Lott, and Coretta Johnson behind, the Stage Band singers sing many of the old classics that are traditional songs of the season.

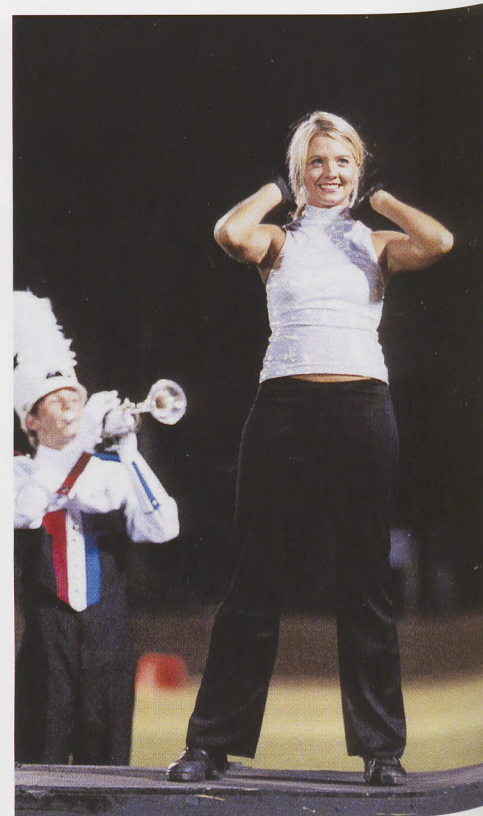

With colorful flags framing the background, the Marching Band performs during halftime at football games. For many, halftime performances were as exciting and entertaining as the football games.

The Dance Line flashes smiles as they move in unison during Homecoming pep rally.

Whether performing before students in assembly or performing before Bear fans, dancers like Dee Dee Rawls remain calm and confident.

... SMCC Bands

From practicing in the band room to practicing on the field, the Southwest Marching Band did what it took to prepare for another season of halftime performances during football season and another season of marching in Christmas parades.

Being a member of the Marching Band is not an easy task. To be successful, you have to discipline yourself to hours of practice and hours of marching, often in extreme temperatures. Even more importantly, you have to learn the intricate steps to move effortlessly across the field while playing on key, yet the Marching Band members conquered all challenges.

Using a medley of Stevie Wonder tunes throughout their program, the band began with "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," followed by "Higher Ground" and "Sir Duke." Stevie Lott added his vocal talent to "I Just Called to Say I Love You," and after hearing his rendition, lots of folks were loving him.

The tempo continued with "Superstition," "I Wish," and "Signed, Sealed, Delivered." Many of these tunes featured instrumental solos by Becky McKenzie, Daniel Rankin, and Chance

Wilson, while an instrumental ensemble included Lindsay Sterling, Kristen Prentiss, Aaron Conerly, Victoria Scott, and Becky McKenzie.

The halftime shows ended too soon for many fans, yet these loyal fans had another opportunity to hear and see some of these performers again. When football season ended in November, some band members moved indoors to begin practicing for the annual Christmas stage band shows where new tunes and musical notes awaited them.

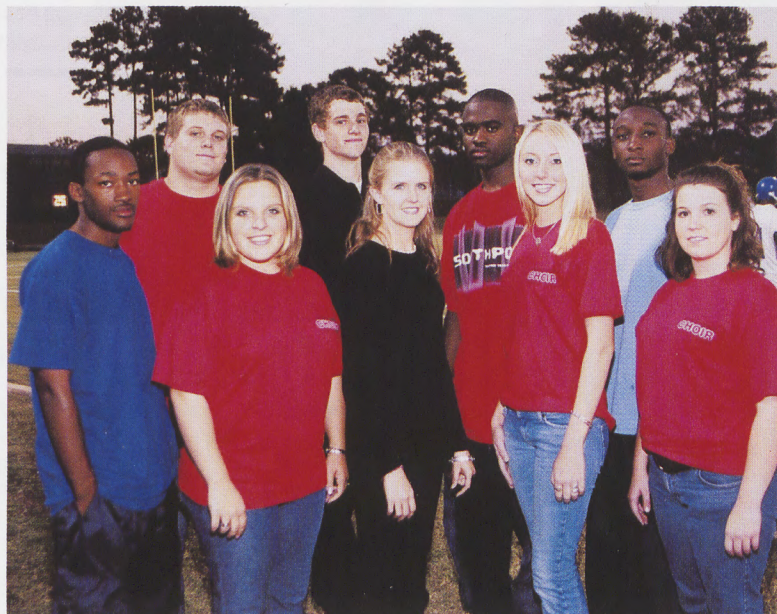

Loaded with instruments and extra clothing, Chance Johnson and Larissa Dixon chat as they make their way from the band hall to John I. Hurst Stadium.

Holding the distinction as one of only two bands in the state, the Steel Drum Band brought a new sound to the stages of Southwest.

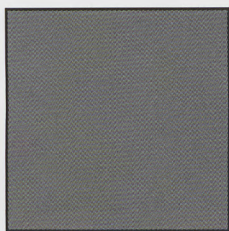

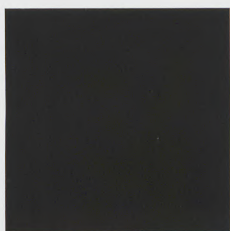

Directed by Clay Whittington, who created both bands in the state, the Steel Drum Band, playing "Gleensleeves" and "Pan Christmas," debuted in December 2001 at the Stage Band's annual Christmas show, and it has been stealing the shows since debuting two years ago.

ho won the battle between Southwest and archrival Co-Lin? For answers to questions like that one, you must look to the athletic department, where athletes had opportunities to participate in football, basketball, baseball, softball, tennis, or golf.

For many Bear fans, the highlight of each academic year occurs on the playing surfaces across campus. Whether in the Horace C. Holmes gymnasium or on the tennis courts, baseball field, softball field, golf course, or John I. Hurst Stadium, fans flocked to see the physical and mental battle between the mighty Bears and their opponents.

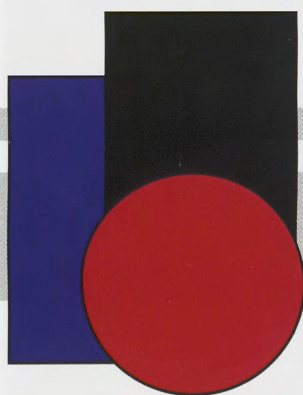

To sports enthusiasts, victory was the name of the game. In learning how to be victorious and in playing to win, Bear participants learned essentials like teamwork, sacrifice, training, long suffering, dedication, and cooperation. Learning these essentials helped shape these Bears for success both on and off the battleground.

Coach Dom Green leans in close to discuss strategy.

SMCC Football

Season ends in good shape . . .

Coming off of a 3-6 season in 2002, where four of those defeats came within the final 30 seconds of the game, third-year head coach Dom Green had lofty expectations for the 2003 team. "Our rallying cry is the word 'finish,'" Green said. "We could have easily been 7-2 last season. We didn't finish games. We need to play a full 60 minutes this season instead of 59 minutes, 30 seconds." And finish the Bears did as they improved to a 5-4 record in 2003, losing the four games by a total of only 14 points!

Known for its sound defense, the Bears had an offense that equaled its defense as the 43-6 romp over Coahoma in the season opener showed. The score definitely revealed that the offense had "a little more firepower than in the past."

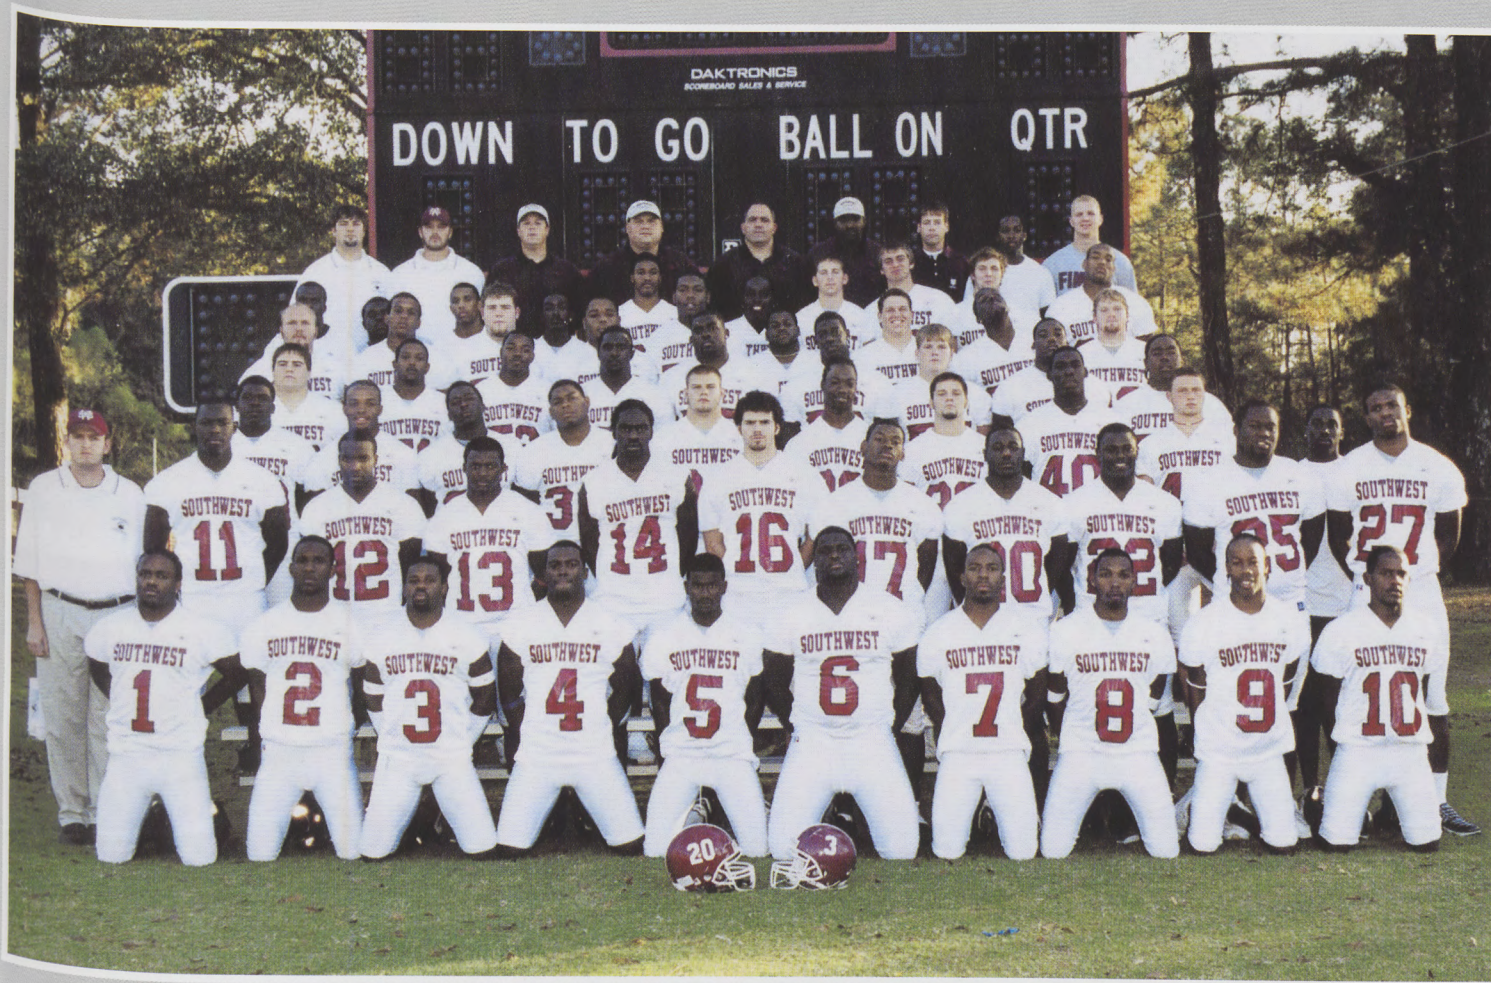

Following its decisive win over the Coahoma Tigers, the Bears would face a greater challenge the following week against the defending State JUCO champion, the Holmes Bulldogs. Yet, these Bulldogs were mere pups to the mighty Bears who won 13-2 at John I. Hurst Stadium.

Offensively, the Bears marched 96 yards to score on its first possession of the game. Defensively, Southwest stopped Holmes in Southwest territory on several occasions, including a late Holmes drive inside the Southwest 15. As rain began to fall in the fourth quarter, the Bears allowed the 2-point safety only to avoid the risk of a bad snap with a wet football with 6 minutes, 37 seconds remaining in the game.

With a 2-0 record in their pocket, the Bears were off to a good start.

Season begins and ends on winning note . . .

Winning the first two games, even though they were non-division games, was nice, but winning the first game in South Division play would be better. Unfortunately, that was not to be as the Bears, losing 9-7, succumbed to the Hinds Eagles on their home turf. The Bears missed an opportunity to take the lead with 5:06 remaining in the game, but a fumble at the Hinds 8 returned possession of the ball back to the Eagles, who ran out the remaining 5 minutes.

The loss against Hinds set the pattern for the next three match-ups as the Bears fell 26-25 on the road against Northeast, 17-14 against nationally ranked Jones during Southwest's homecoming game, and 14-6 at home against Pearl River. A study of the stats revealed that the Bears lost these four contests by a total of only 14 points.

With only three games remaining, fans wondered if the Bears' losing streak would continue, yet they remained confident in the Bears' ability to prove that they were a team to fear. On October 16, the spell broke as Southwest downed Gulf Coast 35-19, earning its first South Division win. The score included a Hail Mary bomb for a touchdown on the final play of the first half when Scottie Reddix grabbed Reggie Lindsay's pass. The following week would bring archrival Co-Lin to Bear turf for a bitter match.

Not forgetting its 16-10 loss last year to the Co-Lin Wolves, Southwest dominated with the defense holding the Wolves to 28 total net rushing yards and 139 passing. Offensively, the Bears jumped out to a 17-0 lead before the Wolves realized what happened.

The final game of the season began as the first, with Southwest shutting out East Central 24-0, ending the season 5-4 overall and 3-3 within South Division play. Both offense and defense were able to control the line of scrimmage.

Without a doubt, the last three games showed the South Division what the Bears were really all about. And while the scores didn't always note it, the coaches did. Following the Co-Lin game, Co-Lin coach David Poinsett stated, "They [Southwest] are probably the best in the South Division." East Central's head coach Terry Underwood concurred stating, "Southwest has got a good team," when his team received what he called "a good old-fashioned butt-kicking," or more appropriately a Bear clawing.

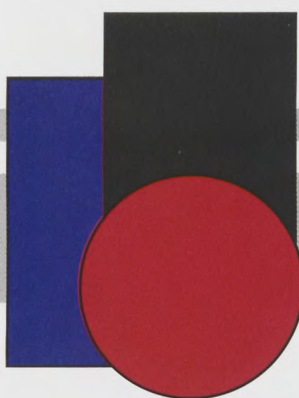

On October 31, the season officially ended, and the scores were in the books. However, for many players their days in the limelight would continue in all-star games and on official visits to four-year institutions. In just a few weeks, training would begin for next year's season in order to get the team in shape to once again take to the fields before a stadium filled with cheering crowds who come to see the fearless Bears. Next season . . . a clean slate ready to record nothing but Bear victories!

SMCC Basketball

Even though the Bears had six returning sophomores and a talented group of freshmen, the season started slowly for the Bears as they dropped the first three games. Coming home to Horace C. Holmes Gymnasium proved the charm as the Bears broke their losing streak 97-85 against visiting Mississippi Delta.

Dexter High School grads Nic Gamble and Torry Crumedy led the Bears scoring 29 and 24 points respectively before a home crowd. The Delta Trojans put forth a valiant effort, however, moving within two points, 54-52, at the beginning of the second half.

The Bears then picked up the action to place the momentum back on their side of the court, a momentum that continued throughout the game. During the final minutes, Crumedy sank six straight free throws with 19.7 seconds left while D. J. Carr's dunk seconds later sealed the Trojan's fate.

The Bears did not fare as well the next few weeks, losing three of the four remaining games before Christmas break. Coming off a disappointing loss to Northwest, Coach Bill Wallace revamped practices in preparation for Delgado.

Early on, the Bears trailed Delgado 14-5, but the Bears came alive to lead 18-16 with over 7 minutes remaining in the first half. After the Bear run, Delgado would never see the lead again.

With Christmas only days away, the Bears left campus for a much needed break from the wooden battlegrounds. Though the Bears left 3-7 overall and 0-2 in South Division, the team knew they would rebound after Christmas.

Rest and time with family did not seem to cure the "Bear plague." Returning to action on January 5, 2004, the Bears dropped their first game of the new year to Delgado after defeating them in earlier competitions.

In an interview with the Enterprise Journal following the game, Coach Wallace stated, "We played pretty good the second half, but you've got to play both halves."

The losing streak continued as the Bears traveled up I-55 to take on nationally-ranked Northwest, but the Bears found the right formula when they returned to face East Central, winning 92-73 to break the spell.

Against the Warriors, Toby Coleman scored a game-high of 24 points, earning 21 of those points in the second half. The Warriors narrowed the gap to 59-58, but the Bears edged ahead and never looked back.

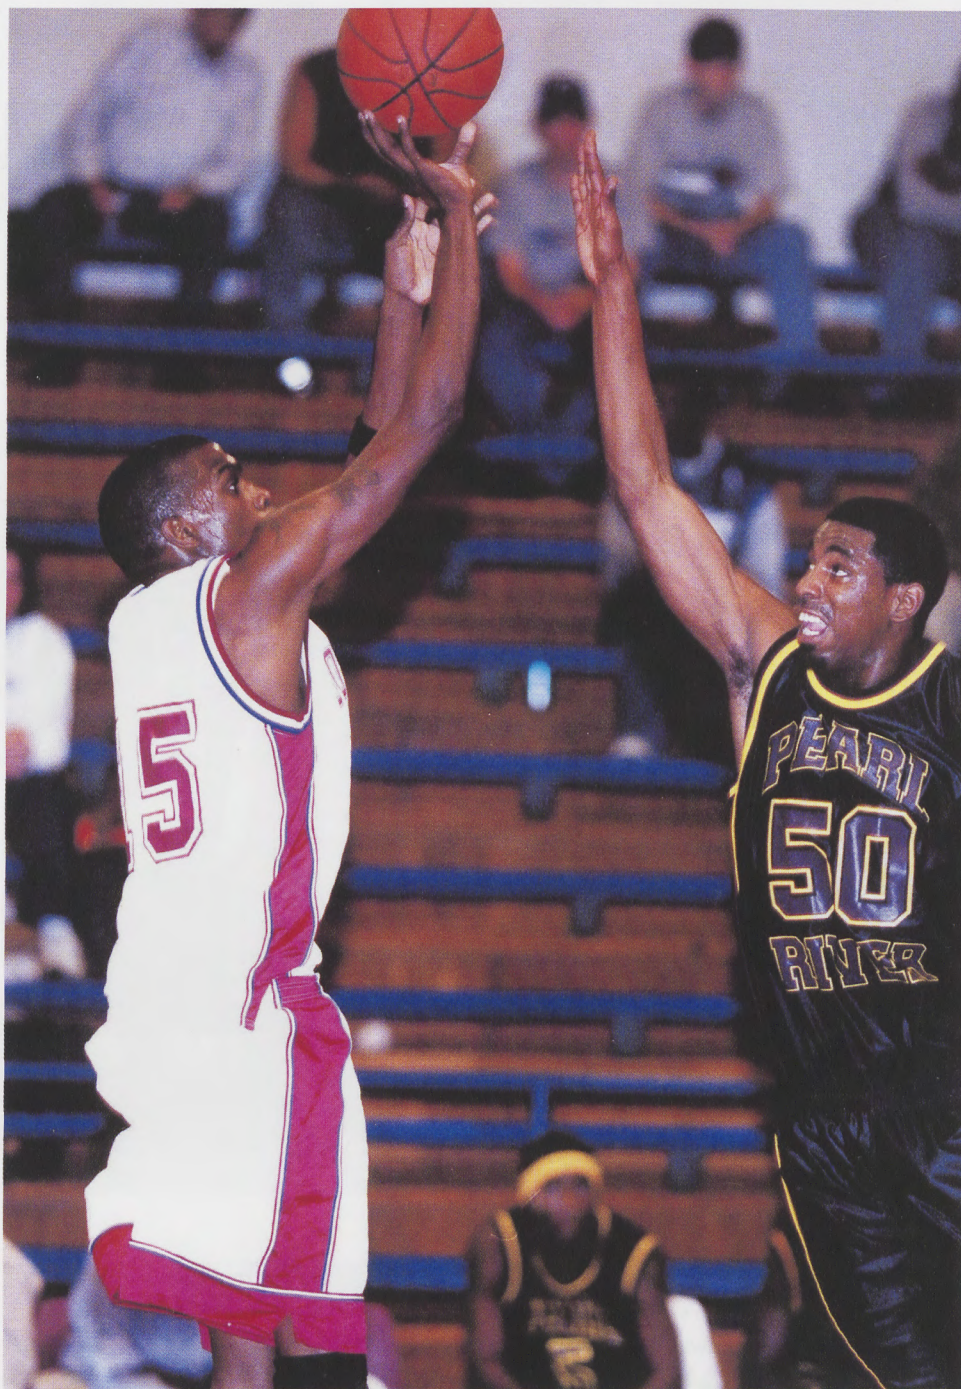

Wins continued in the upcoming weeks and the Bears edged out Jones, Meridian, Hinds, and East Central. The Meridian-Southwest contest proved to be a dunk-a-thon as the blazing hot Bears sizzled the nets, shooting 51 percent from the field.

Coach Wallace credits the extra practices for mentally focusing his guys for the competition. Extra practices obviously worked as the Bears led 43-39 at halftime and kept the intensity up during the second half.

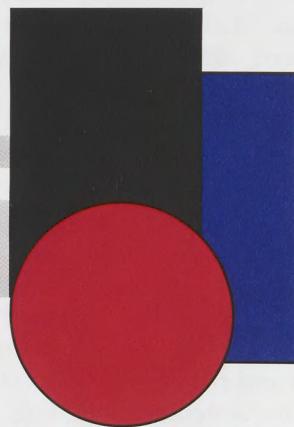

Winning against Hinds took more than regulation play as they moved into overtime to clip Hinds' wings 78-77. Sophomore B. J. Griffith nailed a 3-pointer from the right base line as time expired to put the Bears over the top.

Unfortunately, the Bears did not fare as well in their overtime loss to Gulf Coast. Southwest allowed a 36-20 lead at halftime and their 23 point lead with 13 minutes, 40 seconds remaining in the second half to slip away. A full court man-to-man defense by the Bulldogs and missed shots by the Bears led to Southwest's demise.

Fortunately, however, Bear fans knew that their team might not win every game, so they remained faithful and loyal. Bear fans also knew that the Bear organization had strong leadership and determined players who always found a way to claw their way back to victory.

Chris Watson goes for two while Dawanna Addison eyes her next move.

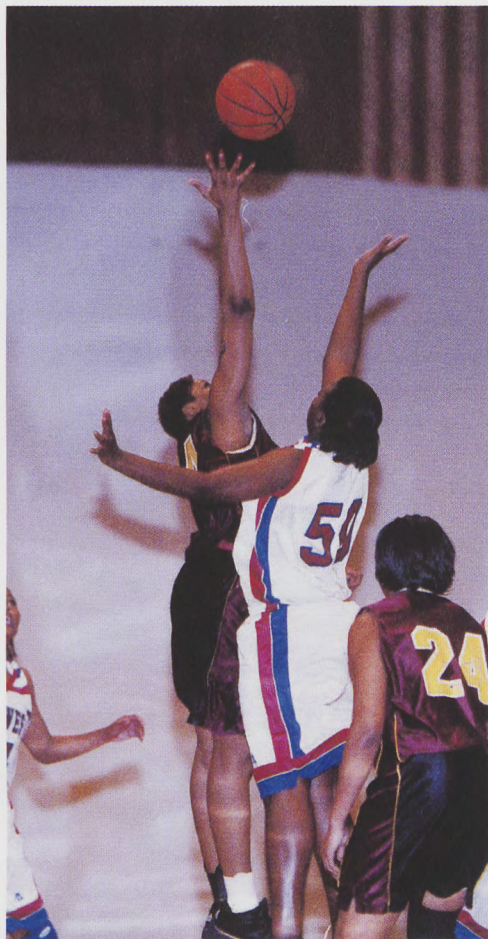

Hillary Branch gets in position to block her "man."

Charity Barnes goes for the ball and hopes that height is on her side.

Heading for the hoops . . .

After dropping the first two games of the season, the Lady Bears enjoyed their first win in Scooba, away from their home turf, by defeating East Mississippi 70-61. Coach Mark Swindle noted that the Lady Bears had picked up the pace to win on the road.

Unfortunately, a losing streak followed with the Lady Bears dropping the next three games. Their next win occurred against Hinds to mark their first South Division contest, improving their record to 4-5 overall. Southwest led 38-33 at halftime, and Erika Holloway's two free throws iced the game for the Lady Bears.

The Lady Bears had a repeat performance in their contest against Pearl River as they outlasted the Lady Wildcats to win 65-63. Winning these games and having a 2-0 record in South Division action made going home for Christmas holidays more rewarding.

A return to the courts on January 5, 2004, nipped the momentum the Lady Bears enjoyed before Christmas. In fact, a six-game losing streak ensued and did not snap until the Lady Bears defeated Meridian. In a post-game interview after the Meridian contest, Coach Swindle stated to the Enterprise Journal, "It was a battle all the way, and we came out on top in the end. Dawanna [Addison] and [Tiffany] Aych really played good. They were the answer."

The Lady Bears emerged victorious over the next two opponents, Hinds and Pearl River, as well. Leading 33-20 at halftime, the Lady Bears never looked back as Hinds nipped at their heels all night.

Regulation play was not enough time for the Lady Bears to defeat Pearl River, but the Lady Bears pulled out the victory in overtime. Regulation ended with a 69-69 tied game. Pearl River led by 18 points in the second half before the Lady Bears' press forced turnovers, putting Southwest back in the game.

With 60 seconds remaining, the Lady Bears led by 4. Dawanna Addison sealed Pearl River's fate as she scored the winning basket seconds before the buzzer.

Indeed, all good things do come to an end as the winning streak ended and the Lady Bears, once again, appeared in the losing column. Like basketballs that go up and down and players that dribble up and down court, the Lady Bears' record went up and down.

The spirit of Bear fans, however, never went down as they continued to cheer and support the girls they had grown to love and the athletes they knew could win.

New coaches shape program . . .

Each season, Bear baseball sees some changes in its participants as new players join the team. This year, however, changes occurred in leadership as well as Butch Holmes moved to head coach and Pete Young and Steve Barrington joined the coaching staff.

Coach Young had been an assistant at Co-Lin for the past six years after playing college ball at Mississippi State and professionally with the Montreal Expos and Boston Red Sox. He concentrated his efforts primarily on young pitchers and catchers. Coach Barrington came to Southwest from Mississippi State where he just graduated with a degree in Technology Teacher Education. He coached the Brookhaven Bandits of the Cotton State League and helped with infielders and outfielders.

After many hours in the weight room and on the practice field this past fall, the 2004 Bears baseball team began practice Tuesday, January 6, 2004, in preparation for the upcoming spring season. Coach Holmes and his team looked to repeat a Regional appearance in May. Last year, the Bears finished with a 19-20 record and an invitation to the Division I Regional in Meridian.

Nine sophomores led the team, with six sophomores returning from last year's team. In addition, Bear coaches welcomed thirteen freshmen to the roster.

With a successful 2003 season and a seasoned, prepared 2004 team, fans expected great accomplishments and achievements from the Bears. They were not disappointed.

SMCC Fastpitch Softball

Team gears up for new season . .

As quickly as one season of fastpitch softball ended, another season began, or so it seemed. Brad Gunnell returned as coach, joined by Wendell Thomas.

The Bear organization was a young team with only four sophomores among its sixteen members. While the majority of the team was new to college sports, they were seasoned athletes and quickly met the challenges of collegiate competitions.

After playing sports for years in high school, these Lady Bears were accustomed to grueling practices and long hours of training before competitions. Even though they came from differing towns and communities, they soon bonded to become one team and one spirit with one goal - winning.

When the afternoons grew longer and the days became warmer, you knew that summer sports had finally arrived after months of sweaters, rain, and freezing temperatures. Whether you preferred watching men or women sports, Southwest had you covered in spring.

After their photo session, the team gathers around Coach Gunnell to hear their practice schedule for the day. With only days remaining before their first contest against East Mississippi, the team spent the afternoon on drills to improve weak areas.

Cheerleaders cheer at many events, including Homecoming pep rally.

SMCC Cheerleaders

Let me hear you say . . .

Southwest, Southwest, Southwest! The ones you hear chanting the school cry are Southwest cheerleaders, selected each year by a team of judges who base their selections on individual performances and abilities to learn a new cheer and dance routine at tryouts. As spirit leaders, cheerleaders spend hours in practice and training to cheer and perform the jumps and stunts necessary to involve the crowd and encourage team spirit.

Cheerleading may not be a contact sport, but it requires intense training and preparation to get cheerleaders into shape. Stretching exercises limber muscles and enable cheerleaders to jump, bounce, dance, and build pyramids without causing injuries to themselves. Their sponsor, Jennifer Green, ensures that Bear cheerleaders receive the proper conditioning to meet the task before them each semester.

And yet, physical strengths are only one characteristic needed for good cheerleaders. They must have the artistic ability to make run-throughs and banners, good study habits to maintain high averages when games take them out of school, and the ability to function after long nights of travel.

Cheering is not for the weary or weak, so Southwest cheerleaders are in shape for the challenge.

During their dance number Heather Harden, Grace McDaniel, and Cody Redditt move to the beat.

Dawn Brumfield's English class moves outdoors to write their descriptive essays, and with scenery as beautiful as Southwest's campus, these students have plenty to describe.

A stylized, dark grey logo resembling a cursive 'W' or 'V' is positioned in the top right corner of the page.

district Southwest serves of Amite, Pike, Walthall, and Wilkinson counties. Others came from surrounding states and even as far north as Wisconsin.

The campus saw many new and returning faces during academic year 2003-04. Each brought different dreams, ideas, opinions, talents, and knowledge to share, discover, and develop inner strengths. Through these diversities students learned how to adapt and shape themselves to function in an environment that greatly differs from their home or hometown community.

Holmes shapes Southwest's future

Who is most interested in Southwest's future? Who is Southwest's most loyal fan and supporter? The answer to both questions is simple - President Horace C. Holmes. Unquestionably, no one person has a greater love and devotion for Southwest than President Holmes, and he shows it.

During his thirty-one years as Southwest's president, he has drawn on his experience as a student in the community college system and as a leader in the community college system, serving as instructor, basketball coach, and Academic Dean/Vice President. During this time he has spearheaded many projects, such as the direct access to Southwest from I-55, multiple building renovations, erections, and expansions on campus, and improved teacher salaries among the community colleges.

President Holmes understands that a changing and developing world mandates a people equipped with skills to adapt to change. Thus, he ensures that Southwest provides its students with the training necessary for a changing world.

As president, Holmes has witnessed many records, but the Fall 2003 enrollment of 2,052 students set a new record. When asked about this newest record, President Holmes stated, "I attribute the growth in enrollment to the diversity of programs and, of course, layoffs in industry. I think all of the colleges and universities are seeing accelerated enrollment now. When I first came in 1953, enrollment was approximately 300 students; there were 18 faculty members teaching 70 classes and there are now 96 faculty teaching 638 classes."

Continued growth - that's President Holmes' vision for his beloved Southwest. And he'll ensure that his decisions promote this continued growth to shape Southwest's future.

At assembly President Holmes encourages all to attend Southwest's annual homecoming activities.

On behalf of the college, President Holmes accepts a $10,000 grant from BellSouth representatives Dennis Brackin and Rich Stewart.

President Holmes welcomes Marsha Barbour to campus during her recent visit to the area while campaigning for her husband's bid for governor.

Outstanding Instructor and Student

Chosen by faculty, Kim Evans and Karinlee Brister were the newest recipients of HEADWAE honors. The Higher Education Appreciation Day Working for Academic Excellence (HEADWAE) is a program that annually honors an outstanding faculty member and an outstanding student from each participating member institution of the Mississippi Association of Colleges.

Kim Evans, a graduate of Southwest Mississippi Community College and a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi for both her B.S. and M.S. degrees, has been teaching the Computer Information Systems Technology (CIST) program at Southwest since 2000. This year Kim was instrumental in organizing a new chapter of Phi Beta Lambda for the CIST department and serves as its advisor.

Kim, daughter of Mrs. Gayle Jeansonne of Tylertown, plans to continue her education by pursuing a Ph.D. in education administration on the post-secondary level.

Daughter of Michael and Kathryn Brister, Karinlee Brister is a North Pike High School graduate, where she served in many leadership roles and received various honors. In addition, Karinlee has been a member of the Azalea Court, is a former Junior Miss for Pike County, and is currently Pike County's Miss Hospitality.

At Southwest, Karinlee is drum major and a member of the choir and Reflection singing group. As a freshman, she was class president and freshman maid for homecoming. During her sophomore year, Karinlee served as SGA president, was a member of PTK and Bear Trackers, and received the President's Award for Student Service.

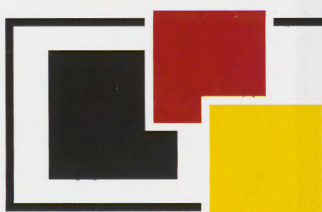

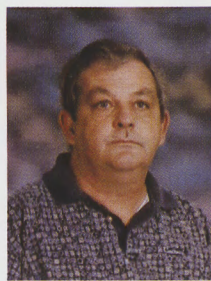

Karinlee is a pharmacy major and plans to attend the University of Mississippi after her May graduation.

Jason Bernard Brown

Son of Mae Brown and J. C. Carter, Jason Brown, a Dexter High School graduate is a pre-med major.

Jason, maintaining a 3.85 GPA, remained busy with his studies and his campus roles at Southwest. During his freshman year, he was named Class Favorite and was a member of Scholars Bowl.

As a sophomore, Jason divided his time between Scholars Bowl, SGA, serving as vice president, and PTK, serving as Vice President of Scholarship and fundraiser team captain. During his sophomore year, he was elected Campus Favorite and represented Southwest as a Bear Tracker. In addition, he was a member of the Honors Forum class, an invitation-only class, and a member of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges and the National Dean's list.

Jason's success began in high school where he was salutatorian. He was chosen by his peers as Most Likely to Succeed, Best Dressed, and class favorite and by the faculty as Mr. DHS.

For relaxation when he was not in class or working at Lowe's, Jason enjoys reading, writing poetry, and listening to music.

After graduation, Jason plans to pursue his degree in pre-medicine at the University of Southern Mississippi, Tulane, or Ole Miss.

Karinlee Michele Brister

Karinlee Brister, daughter of Michael and Kathryn Brister, is a graduate of North Pike High School, where she was salutatorian and voted Most Likely to Succeed, among many other honors.

At Southwest, Karinlee remained busy. She served as SGA president, drum major, a Bear Tracker, a public relations officer for PTK, and a member of Honors Forum, show choir, concert choir, and concert band. Her peers elected her freshman class favorite, freshman class president, homecoming maid during her freshman and sophomore years, and Miss SMCC, while faculty selected her as its HEADWAE recipient. Additionally, Karinlee was named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges and the National Dean's list.

Karinlee received community acclaim as well. She is Pike County's Miss Hospitality and a recipient of the President's Award for Student Service and has completed over 800 hours of community service over the past four years.

When not involved in one of her many activities, Karinlee enjoys singing, volunteering, spending time with friends and family, and participating in church activities.

As a pharmacy major, Karinlee plans to continue her education at Ole Miss.

Bradley Scott Wallace

Bradley Wallace, son of Joan Thornhill of Jayess, is a honor graduate of Salem High School.

At Salem, Bradley earned many honors. He was selected Star Student, Mr. Beta, and president of the Math and Science Club. In addition, he received the 4-Year Math Award during his senior year.

At Southwest, he served in many functions as well. Bradley was a chemistry lab assistant. This experience helped not only chemistry instructor Pete Ferguson and chemistry students but also Bradley, who plans to pursue a career in pre-medicine or biological sciences when he transfers to Mississippi College. He was a member and officer of Phi Theta Kappa, serving as treasurer, a Bear Tracker, and a member of the Honors Forum class. Bradley was also named to the prestigious Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

When not involved with school activities and other responsibilities, Bradley enjoys hunting, fishing, and riding motorbikes.

Hall of Fame

Holly Christine Myers

Daughter of Jeff and Lisa Myers of Magnolia, Holly Myers is a graduate of Mr. Hermon School, where she was valedictorian, honored for three years by the Washington Parish School Board for maintaining the highest GPA, and received an academic jacket for the highest GPA.

At Southwest, Holly's achievements and involvements continued. Holly, maintaining a 4.0 GPA, was a chemistry lab assistant and assisted with recruiting as a Bear Tracker. Additionally, she was a member of Honors Forum, the yearbook staff, BSU Leadership Team, and Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges. She served as treasurer for the sophomore class and vice-president of Phi Theta Kappa, where she was a Golden Key nominee. As a freshman, she was voted class favorite by the freshman class.

During her free time, Holly enjoys reading, writing, listening to music, cross stitching, and spending time with her friends.

After graduation, Holly, a pre-chemistry major, plans to attend Ole Miss.

Students embrace

To get the campus in the Christmas spirit, the choir leads the audience in a few traditional Christmas carols at the lighting of the Christmas tree in the Student Union.

opportunities to perform

While Trevor Campbell, Bridget Regan, and Stevie Lott take center stage, Cody Cameron and Christopher McKissick wait in the wings.

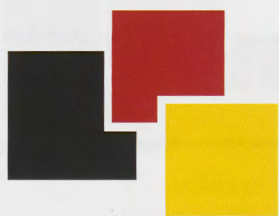

The SMCC Choir serenades Kennah Buatt and Patrick McMorris. A stop at day care was one of several stops as the choir serenaded people and organizations all semester.

Each year students have many opportunities to express themselves through campus performances. Many performances required extensive preparations in rehearsals, such as Guys and Dolls, presented by the SMCC Choir and the annual Christmas and spring Stage Band shows.

Other performances were short, such as the choir's singing at various spots across campus and its singing at the newest campus event, the lighting of the SMCC Christmas tree.

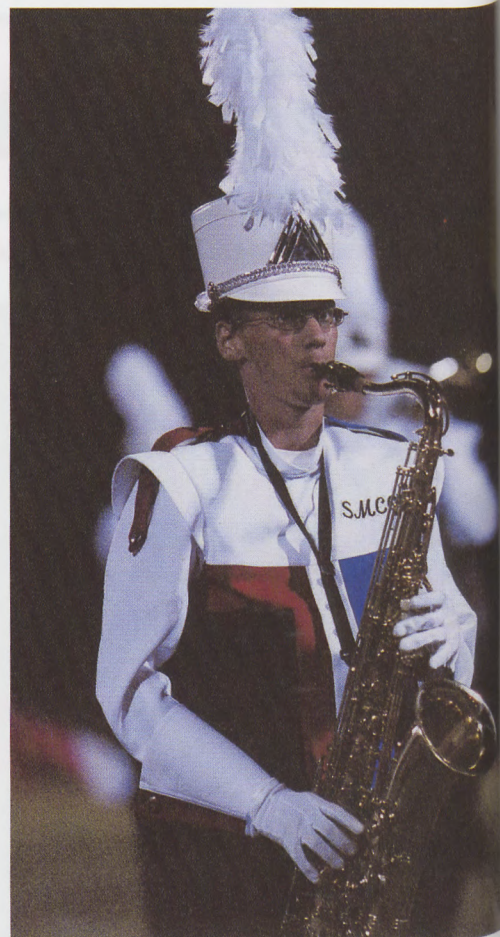

Whether long or short, each performance assisted students in shaping their talents or in making theatrical debuts.

Cheri Causey, singing "Love Came Down," woos the audience at the Christmas Stage Band performances.

Will Ratcliff never misses a note or a beat during the Homecoming '03 performance.

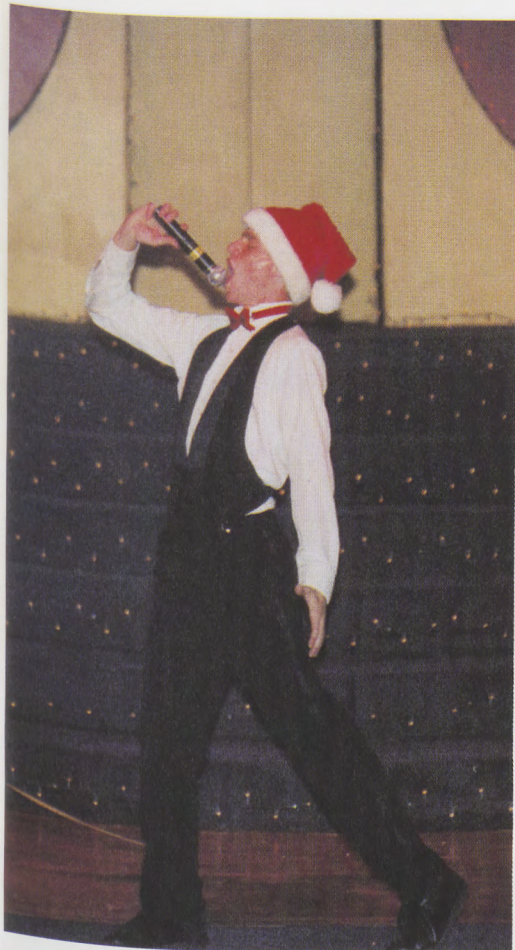

Aaron Conerly, Tyree Howard, Larissa Dixon, and Ron Lee listen to the tales Sean Conerly tells as they witness to him at the mission. Guys and Dolls was a huge success and learning experience for all participants.

The highlight for many at football games is halftime performances by the SMCC Marching Band.

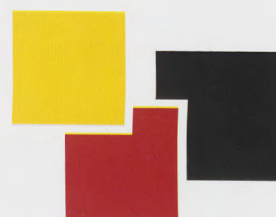

Singing "You're a Mean One, Mr. Grinch," Stevie Lott enjoys performing for the crowds.

Jen Goodwin and Crystal Ferguson move to the beat as Cody Cameron sings "Run, Run, Rudolph."

Stage Band performances include singers like Coretta Johnson, Sarah Graves-Rushing, Cheri Causey, and Karinlee Brister.

Bears stay on the prowl

As muscles bulge, Nic Gamble keeps his eye on the ball and the next play.

Running back Dencen Clay scrambles to gain yardage.

Infielder Josh Beavers makes the catch.

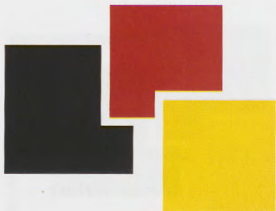

Reggie Lindsey attempts to avoid a sack.

Chris Watson goes for the dunk and two.

Runners go through the drills, and Les Dykes leads the way.

Even students who didn't perform stayed on the move across campus. Whether they were going back and forth to class, eating in the cafeteria or grill, attending organizational meetings, or playing a sport, Bears stayed on the prowl.

During afternoon practices, outfielder Kristi Whittington watches Kristyn Lovett throw the ball back into play.

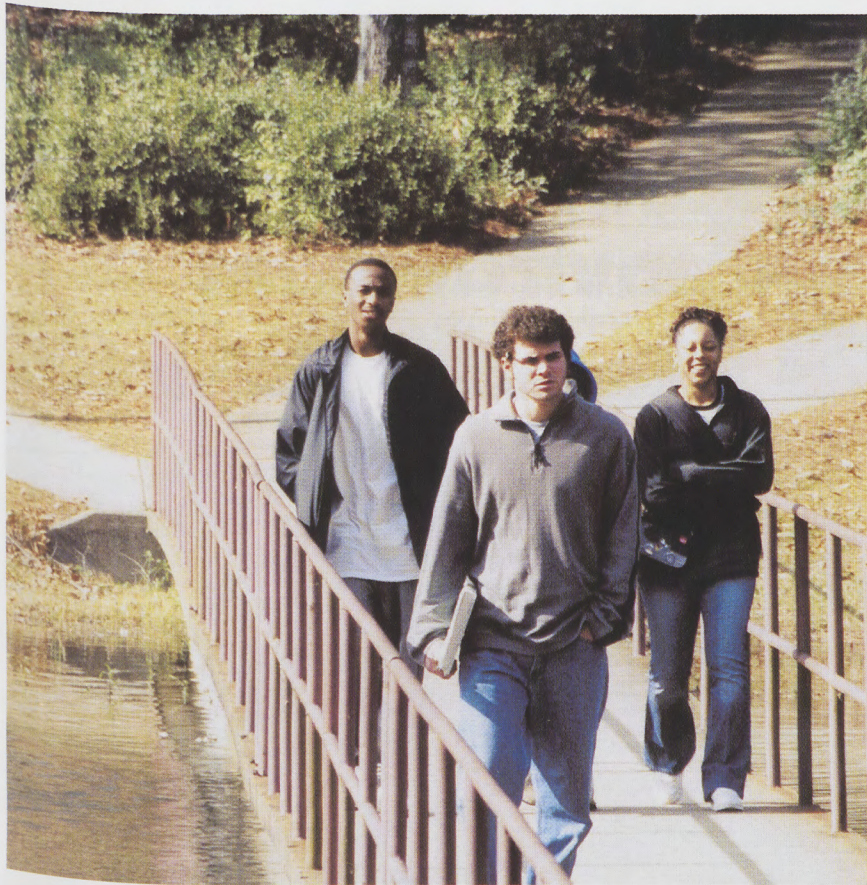

After a morning of classes, Kim Conerly and Maegan Fortenberry round the corner headed for home, or in this case, the dorms.

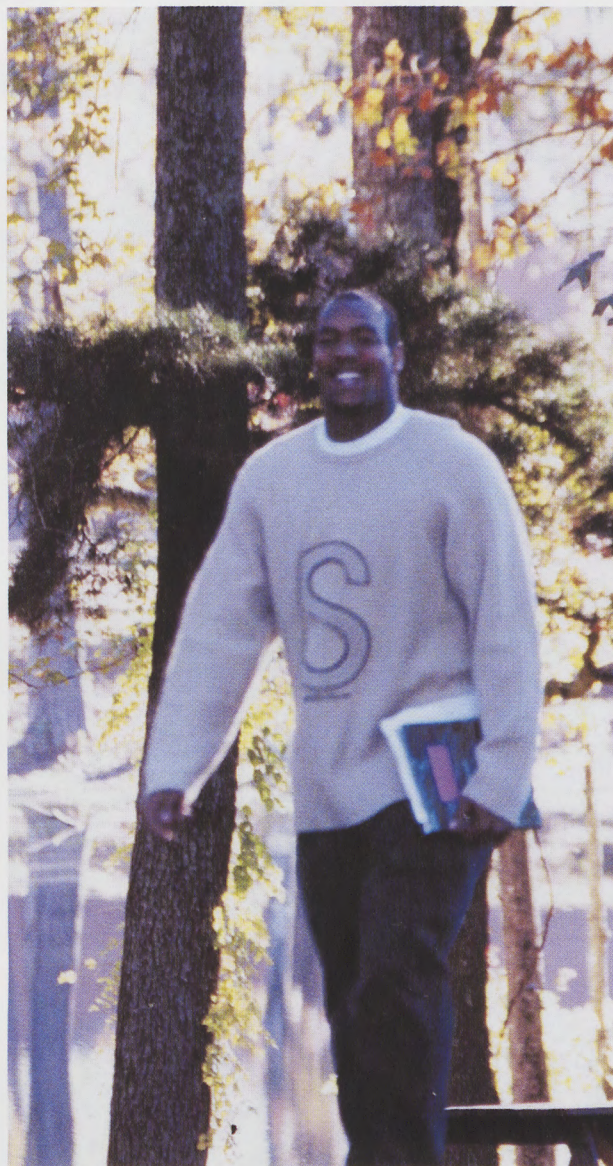

Emily Smith feeds the pitching machine so the Lady Bears gain sufficient batting practice to emerge victorious over all competitors.

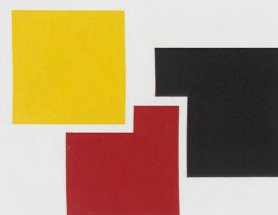

The quickest way to go from the east side of campus to the west side is to cross one of the bridges. Many students took advantage of this fast route.

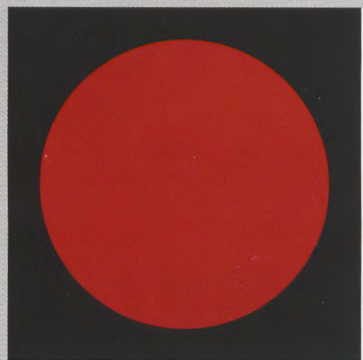

Markell Thompson walks the trails of Southwest on his way to class. Coming to Mississippi from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Markell completed his education at Southwest, played Bears football, and transferred to Florida to play university football.

Very seldom does a student attend Southwest and not walk one of its many trails. During the changing seasons, the view was spectacular.

Campus scenes shape aesthetic environment

Mention the word Southwest and you instantly think of its beautiful campus. Regardless of season, vibrant colors adorn its surfaces to produce an aesthetically pleasing and soothing environment conducive to learning.

Long after students leave, they remember the days they shuffled through the fallen leaves, strolled by blooming azaleas, listened to the geese squawk in Bear Lake, and saw seasonal flowers change in front of the Administration Building like the changing of the guard. Without a doubt, Southwest has the most beautiful campus in Mississippi, regardless of season.

Bears leave in good shape for future

With books in hand, Bryan Ashmore heads for class.

Sometimes students want a break from cafeteria food. Students Sheriba Williams, Erika Holloway, Tiffany Aych, Erica Smith, and Lakeneyawiana Felder decided to give the grill a try for some tasty hamburgers and greasy French fries.

With books in his backpack and new information swimming in his head, Andrew Putnam leaves class ready for his next challenge.

After eating your meal or while waiting for your food to arrive, students play ping pong, pool, cards, or other games in the grill. Dawn Ashley decided to try her hand at ping pong.

To mimic the statues, Bradley Wallace gets on one knee to "propose" to Holly Myers. Bradley and Holly were among the PTK members who attended the PTK Regional Honors Institute at the University of North Alabama. One day, much sooner than they think, Bradley and Holly will find their "soul mates" and Bradley will drop on one knee for real. For now, however, they focus their time and energy on friendships and studies that will shape their future.

What better way to start a marriage than to get an education at Southwest!

Indeed, Southwest shaped the future of many students, and students shaped the face of Southwest as well. As the year ended, students packed up their belongings and said their goodbyes. Some returned in a few weeks for summer school or for the fall term, but others moved on to a university or the workforce better prepared for the challenges that lay ahead of them than when they first drove on campus.

Whether on the playing fields, in laboratories, in organizations, or in classrooms, students gained skills, knowledge, and experiences that would forever shape how they think and act. College life exposed them to a microcosm of society. Adapting here helped them adapt there. For certain, no one left Southwest untouched by the experience.

Although these students may not realize it now, in time they will reflect and see how Southwest's campus, faculty, administration, and staff forever shaped their lives and their futures.

A hearty breakfast makes for a good day, so these guys dig in, but say little.

Chasity Varnado utilizes the Learning Lab for her research needs. Southwest students soon discovered about arriving on campus that the Learning Lab was an invaluable tool to enhance their learning experience.

For his introductory speech introducing himself to his class, Joshua Ourso dresses for the occasion.

When the weather is pretty, students enjoy eating their lunch on one of the picnic tables outside the grill.

During the Career Fair, these Southwest students listen intently to her career options.

Editor's Note

This year's Whispering Pines' staff learned that hard work, dedication, and teamwork are necessities when shaping a yearbook. However, unlike past yearbook staffs, this staff had the task of capturing the memories of over 2,000 students. It was no easy task, but the staff worked together to shape a yearbook that will never be forgotten.

As editor and assistant editor, we would like to thank many people. First, we would like to thank the administrators, faculty, staff, and students. We thank you for the time you spent helping us identify the many faces here at Southwest. We hope you will enjoy looking back at the memories captured in this book as much as we enjoyed capturing them for you.

Second, to the Whispering Pines staff, we say, "Thank you." Whether your task was great or small, you completed it with diligence and pride, and no job ever goes unnoticed or unappreciated. To Mrs. May, we cannot say thanks enough. You gave your time unselfishly to help us capture these moments. We appreciate your patience as we learned how to shape the yearbook and as we learned by your guidance how to shape our lives.

Last and most importantly, we thank God for allowing us to have the privilege to become a part of this outstanding college and yearbook staff. Through God, we know that all things are possible.

Emily Lambuth, assistant editor
